

Contents

8 Max Hollein

Foreword and Acknowledgements to the Lenders

16 Karin Sagner

Gustave Caillebotte – an Impressionist and Photography

34 Panoramas, Perspectives – a New Perception of Space

36 Panorama Photography – Paris in All its Details 48 Stereoscopy – the Breakthrough into 3-D 50 The Fascination of Space

54 New Physiognomies – the City's Street Furniture

56 The Patient Photographer of Parisian Street Furniture 60 From Above to Below
67 The View from Above

78 Poetry of Technique – Aesthetics of Work

80 The Appeal of Technical Structures 114 The Beauty of the Unspectacular

88 Claude Ghez

Reading Gustave Caillebotte's Pont de l'Europe (1876)

116 Active Optics – Flâneurs, Dandies, and Other Dramatis Personae

120 Depicting the Momentary through Movement 124 The Freezing of Movement
126 Passing the Time with a Camera

138	Ulrich Pohlmann
		‘Everything as though under a magic spell’ – The Depiction of Street Life in Nineteenth-century Photographs
152	Citizens Seen in Close View
154	Positions far from Formal Posing
168	Staging of Objects
180	Putting Things on Display – Commodities and Private Idealisation
184	Landscape and Abstraction
196	The Exploration of Painting	202 Austere Arrangements
204	Unconventional Views through Movement
208	Voyeurs and Pedestrians, or: Walking in the City and in the Country
210	Photography – the Only Reliable Depiction of Reality	213 In Praise of Idleness
214	Creating an Awareness of Things by a New Way of Seeing	220 ‘The magical en passant ’ – The Alienation of the Everyday
222	Gilles Chardeau
	Gustave Caillebotte – Biography
234	List of Exhibited Works with Short Biographies	244 Image Credits
245	The Authors	246 Imprint