CHAPTER 1: A PHYSICALIST APPROACH TO CONSCIOUSNESS.....

1.0 Introduction.....	7
1.1 Consciousness and “what it is like”	7
1.2 Realism about consciousness	13
1.2.1 Eliminativism.....	14
1.2.2 The problem of consciousness.....	17
1.3 Physicalism about consciousness	19
1.3.1 Physical items	20
1.3.2 Supervenience.....	21
1.4 The mind/body duality	23
1.5 Minds and bodies	28
1.5.1 Mind-body causal relations	30
1.5.2 Epiphenomenalism	31
1.5.3 Monism	35
1.6 Panpsychism	36
1.6.1 The combination problem.....	39
1.6.2 Panpsychism and neuroscience	42
1.7 Conclusion	44

CHAPTER 2: STRONG AI AND COMPUTATIONALISM.....

2.0 Introduction.....	47
2.1 Strong AI	48
2.1.1 Conscious behaviour.....	51
2.1.2 Consciousness and behaviour.....	53
2.2 Computational functionalism	56
2.2.1 Functionalism and consciousness.....	59
2.2.2 Functions and information.....	66
2.3 The internal character of consciousness	70
2.4 Conclusion	73

CHAPTER 3: SUBJECTIVITY AND THE UNITY OF CONSCIOUSNESS.....

3.0 Introduction.....	75
-----------------------	----

3.1 Higher-order representation theories of consciousness.....	77
3.2 The unity of consciousness	84
3.3 The explanatory gap	90
3.3.1 Subjectivity and reality	95
3.3.2 Intersubjective accessibility	98
3.4 The homunculus fallacy.....	101
3.5 Conclusion	105
CHAPTER 4: SUPERVENIENCE, EMERGENCE, AND
ONTOLOGICAL NOVELTY	107
4.0 Introduction.....	107
4.1 Supervenience and ontology.....	108
4.2 Consciousness and supervenience	116
4.3 Microphysicalism	119
4.4 The levels of reality	124
4.5 Emergence.....	128
4.6 The case for emergence.....	131
4.6.1 The kinetic theory of gases	134
4.6.2 The EPR Paradox and Bell's theorem	137
4.6.3 Microphysicalism and nonlocality.....	149
4.7 Emergence laws	152
4.8 Conclusion	155
CHAPTER 5: E-PHYSICALISM AND CONSCIOUSNESS	157
5.0 Introduction	157
5.1 Experiencers	157
5.2 The possible worlds strategy	159
5.2.1 Physical and metaphysical possibility	160
5.2.2 The conceivability of possible worlds	161
5.3 Metaphysical zombies	165
5.4 Kim's "supervenience argument"	171
5.5 Conclusion	175
CHAPTER 6: E-PHYSICALISM AND PHENOMENAL
QUALITIES.....	177
6.0 Introduction	177
6.1 Vehicles and content – an analogy.....	179
6.2 Phenomenal content and representational content.....	184
6.2.1 One vehicle, different contents	186
6.2.2 One content, different vehicles	188
6.2.3 Nonrepresentational phenomenal contents	192

6.3 Phenomenal character and physical states.....	195
6.3.1 Phenomenal character and biological functions	198
6.3.2 Phenomenal space.....	200
6.4 The knowledge argument.....	203
6.4.1 Mary does not acquire new knowledge	203
6.4.2 The ability hypothesis.....	205
6.4.3 The limits of scientific knowledge	207
6.5 Conclusion	210
CONCLUSION	213
