PART ONE Theoretical and Methodological Considerations

1 Outline 3

- 1.1 Jonathan Crary's Techniques of the Observer 4
  - 1.1.1 Contours of Techniques of the Observer 5
    - 1.1.1.1 Introducing the rhetorics of ruptures 5
    - 1.1.1.2 Rupture around 1820: Embodying vision 6
    - 1.1.1.3 The observer as effect: Crary's references to Foucault 6
    - 1.1.1.4 From geometrical to physiological optics 7
    - 1.1.1.5 The problematic status of photography 8
  - 1.1.2 The self-dissolution of Crary's approach 9
- 1.2 Outlining an alternative 13
  - 1.2.1 Layering replacing succession 13
  - 1.2.2 Discontinuity and continuity: Which Foucault? 17
  - 1.2.3 The four optical series 22
- 1.3 Some short remarks on optics and optical media 27
- 1.4 Transplane images and the production of space (Henri Lefebvre): 3D 33
  - 1.4.1 First series: geometrical optics—plane 33

- 1.4.2 Second, third and fourth series: 3D 37
- 1.5 Spatial knowledge and media aesthetics of transplane images 51
- 1.6 Summary and outline 54

PART TWO Case Studies

- 2 1851: Sir David Brewster and the stereoscopic reproduction of sculptures 85
On the Series of Physiological Optics 1
- 3 Since 1860: Photo sculpture 104
On the Series of Virtual Optics 1
Media Aesthetics of the Transplane Image 1:
Karin Sander: People 1:10 (1998–2001)
Media Aesthetics of the Transplane Image 2:
The Matrix (1999)
- 4 1891: Lippmann photography 144
The Series of Wave Optics 1
- 5 Since 1908: Integral photography/lenticular images 165
Applications and Alterations of the Series of Geometrical Optics
Media Aesthetics of the Transplane Image 3: Mariko Mori
Birth of a Star (1995)
- 6 1935–1945: ‘People without space’—people with spatial images 187
Stereoscopy in the Third Reich
The Series of Physiological Optics

The Politics of Transplane Images 1
Media Aesthetics of the Transplane Image 4:
Thomas Ruff, Ruhrgebiet I (1996)

7 1918–1935: Marcel Duchamp: From projection to rotorelief 212

Media Aesthetics of the Transplane Image 5

8 Since 1948: The volumetric display 245

The Series of Physiological Optics 3

The Series of Virtual Optics 2

The Politics of the Transplane Image 2

Media Aesthetics of the Transplane Image 6

and 7: Jenny Holzer, Lustmord (1993–96) and Olafur Eliasson, Convex/Concave (1995/2000)

9 Since 1948: Holography 277

The Series of Wave Optics 2

9.1 Principles, genesis and theory of holography 282

9.2 The spatial knowledge of holo-interferometry 305

9.3 Wave optics and the ‘simulation’ of geometrical optics: Holographic-optical elements, optical vs.
 visual media 320

9.4 Media aesthetics of the transplane image 8—artistic holography: Illusionism, light and achromy 328

9.5 Conclusion 351

10 Since 1960: Repetition and difference:
 The interactive-transplane image 374

The Series of Virtual Optics 3

PART THREE Conclusions

11 2013: Resume 393

- 11.1 First conclusion: Layering and not succession in media history 395
- 11.2 Second conclusion: The importance of the seemingly marginal transplane images for the production of space 396
- 11.3 Third conclusion: The difference of optical and visual media. Anthropomorphic vs. non-anthropomorphic media models 397
- 11.4 Fourth conclusion: Critique of the planocentric notion of the image 399
