

Contents

Editor's Preface	xi
Preface	xv
Introduction	xxi
The Five Great Interpretive Models: From Young Marx to Marxism	xxii
Philosophical Evaluations of The Three Types of Text in Marx's Theoretical Writing	xxix
The Three Theoretical High Points in the Development of Marxist Philosophy	xxxv
1 The Subsidiary Awareness of Young Marx's Early Exposure to Economics	1
1.1 The First Hidden Clue: The Latent Philosophical Framework of Early Political Economy	1
1.2 The Second Hidden Clue: Hegel's Affirmation and Transcendence of Classical Economics	34
1.3 The Third Hidden Clue: Economic Philosophical Logic in Direct Opposition to Bourgeois Society	54
2 Philosophical Discourse in the Context of Economics: From Silence to Prominence	91
2.1 From Kreuznach Notes to Critique of Hegel's Philosophy of Right	91
2.2 The Textual Structure and Context of Paris Notes	103
2.3 A Study of the Excerpted Text in Paris Notes	115
2.4 "Excerpts from James Mill's Elements of Political Economy ": The Appearance of Humanistic Discourse in Economics Criticism	127
3 Dual Discourse: From a Humanist Labor-alienation Conception of History towards Objective Economic Reality	143
3.1 A Basic Overview of the 1844 Manuscript	143
3.2 Towards a Humanist Phenomenological Criticism Based on Social Truth	153
3.3 A Dominant Discourse and a Complex, Latent Logical Paradox	168
3.4 Young Marx's Second Critique of Hegel	189

4	Empirical Texts on the Eve of the Marxist Philosophical Revolution	203
4.1	The Theoretical Alliance of Socialism and Materialism	203
4.2	Non-strategy: The Subintentional Overthrow of Humanist Logic	220
4.3	The Exceptional Thought Experiment in Marx's Move Towards Philosophical Revolution	239
4.4	The Gestalt Shift in Theses on Feuerbach	247
5	The Theoretical Frame of Reference of Marx's New Philosophical Per- spective	261
5.1	New Developments in the Second Phase of Marx's Economics Research	261
5.2	The Alliance of Classical Economics and Socialism	269
5.3	Max Stirner's The Ego and His Own	286
6	The Construction of Marx's Scientific Worldview	299
6.1	The Textual and Discourse Structure of The German Ideology . .	299
6.2	The Historical Existence and Essence of the New Outlook of Marxist Philosophy	316
6.3	Division of Labor and Real World History: A Real, Critical Dis- course in Economics	336
7	The Final Outlook of Marx's Philosophical Revolution	355
7.1	The New Starting Point of Marx's Scientific, Critical Theory . .	355
7.2	The Earliest Unity of Historical Materialism and Political Economy	370
8	Grundrisse and Historical Materialism	389
8.1	London Notes and Grundrisse	389
8.2	The Textual Structure of Grundrisse	398
8.3	The Placement of the Philosophical Logic of Grundrisse	401
8.4	"Abstract to Concrete" Methodology and Historical Materialism .	418
9	Historical Phenomenology in the Context of Economics	435
9.1	The Logic and Historical Analysis of the Essence of the Capitalist Economy and Phenomenological Inversion	435
9.2	Capital: The True Relation Underlying Exchange	462
9.3	Capital : A Mature Expression of Historical Phenomenology . . .	482
	Appendix	495
	Timeline of Marx's Important Scholarly Research and Texts	495
	A Brief Introduction of MEGA	510
	Bibliography	524
	Index	561
	Afterword	565