

Contents

9	Introduction: type, culture and identity	113	Functionalism & geometry	209	LettError, or the ghost in the machine
13	Early type design and printing in the Low Countries	114	Functionalism and the grid	219	The two sides of Luc(as) de Groot
33	Reinventing tradition	117	Wim Crouwel and Dutch Calvinism	228	The unprecedented letterforms of Peter Verheul
34	‘Nieuwe Kunst’: type as decoration	123	Jurriaan Schrofer: alphabets made to measure	233	Letters from Arnhem
37	‘Books of beauty’	126	Functionalism for the masses: Ad Werner	234	Type design and dissidence
40	A pioneer: Sjoerd Hendrik de Roos	131	A typographic counterculture	235	The justification of Evert Bloemsma
48	Display types for the Amsterdam Type Foundry	132	Form follows fun	239	Fred Smeijers: from punches to pixels
54	Jan van Krimpen’s modern traditionalism	133	Swip Stolk’s expressive type	248	Martin Majoor: innovating tradition
65	Manifestations of the new	134	Anthon Beeke: re-humanizing the alphabet	253	Scholing’s Engines
66	Exploring the New	136	Piet Schreuders: making the old look new	255	Roelof Mulder: speed is what we need
68	Wendingen and Art Deco	138	Joost Swarte’s universe	256	Julius de Goede, writing master
78	De Stijl, Constructivism and New Typography	142	Martin Kaye: obsessed by the alphabet	259	Digital lettering and type
85	Metal type: the final years	143	Printing types for a changing technology	260	Personal alphabets in the digital age
86	The Amsterdam Type Foundry after 1945	144	Chris Brand: the power of the pencil	261	The irreverent faces of Max Kisman
90	The ambitions of Dick Dooijes	150	Gerrit Noordzij, teacher & master of crafts	265	Jeanne de Bont and Henk Lamers: ongoing research
95	Sem Hartz, professional gentleman	158	The perfectionism of Bram de Does	267	Donald Beekman, smart drugs & rock’n’roll
99	Painters and penmen	166	The pragmatism of Gerard Unger	270	René Knip: the magic of the sign
100	Hand-lettering: a new tradition	175	Letters from The Hague	274	LUST: the process as product
102	Hague hands: Rozendaal and his students	176	Gerrit Noordzij’s school of letters	276	Hunters and collectors
104	Helmut Salden, the perfectionist	177	Lida Lopes Cardozo Kindersley	280	The Hague, the new generation
106	The natural talent of Susanne Heynemann	179	Rudy Vanderlans and Emigre	281	Con form: the class of ’96–’97
107	Jan Vermeulen, poet and typographer	180	Letters]	290	Underware: a good time with type
108	Painterly alphabets: Theo Kurpershoek, Nicolaas Wijnberg	182	Henk van Leyden: hanging figures on the buses	292	Peter Bil’ak and Typotheque
109	Boudewijn Ietswaart’s unnoticed brilliance	183	The typographic systems of Petr van Blokland	294	More Hague graduates
110	A lost art?	188	Albert-Jan Pool: no nonsense	297	Special projects
112	Torn type by Sandberg	192	Jelle Bosma: behind the scenes	311	Bibliography
		195	Frank E. Blokland and DTL	315	Index of names
		203	Peter Matthias Noordzij and The Enschedé Font Foundry	318	Index of typefaces
		207	Christoph Noordzij, Collis and Thalys	320	Credits