

TABLE OF CONTENTS

PART I. THE MARBURG NEO-KANTIAN TRADITION

Chapter

I. POST-KANTIAN IDEALISM AND THE EMERGENCE OF A CRITICAL PHILOSOPHY: NEO-KANTIANISM (1820-1860)	3
The Three Currents of Neo-Kantianism
Post-Kantian Idealism and the First Current
The End of the First Current
The Second Current: 1850-1860
II. THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE MARBURG SCHOOL: (1860-1875)	32
Zeller, Liebmann, and Lange
The Flowering of the Marburg School
III. HERMANN COHEN'S PHILOSOPHY OF RELIGION: (1875-1918)	76
Cohen's Ethical Theory
Religion and Myth in Cohen
Influence on Cassirer
Cohen's Emerging Philosophy of Judaism
Aesthetics and Religion in Cohen
Platonism, Art and Religion: An Attack on Pantheism
Pure Feeling and the Origin of Religion
Cohen and Natorp Compared

PART II. PAUL NATORP'S PHILOSOPHY OF RELIGION

IV. THE PHILOSOPHICAL FOUNDATIONS OF NATORP'S RELIGIOUS HUMANISM: (1894-1924)	131
Natorp's Ethical Theory
Natorp's Concept of Social Education
Pestalozzi and Natorp
Natorp and Schleiermacher
Natorp and Kant
Natorp's German Nationalism and the Idea of the Logos
V. NATORP AND THE RELIGION OF HUMANITY	175
Religion as a Feeling for the Infinite
Religion, Morality, and the Human Community
VI. A CRITIQUE OF MARBURG NEO-KANTIAN PHILOSOPHY OF RELIGION	200
An Analysis of Hessen's Critique of Natorp

VII. THE TRANSITION TO NATORP'S LATER PHILOSOPHY OF RELIGION:
TRANSCENDENCE AND THE IDEA OF THE ONE	222
Gorland's Critique of Natorp
The Badish School
Scheler and the Idea of the Urgrund
Conclusion: The Transition to the One
BIBLIOGRAPHY	240
INDEX	251