

Content

1	Who Is Doing Economic Research on the Region? .....	1
1.1	Mainstream Economics Does Not Deal with the Middle East.....	1
1.1.1	The “Relevance Gap” .....	1
1.1.2	Orthodox versus Non-orthodox Paradigms and the Consequences of Choice.....	2
1.1.3	Data Problems: Limited Applicability of Mainstream Methods and Instruments .....	3
1.2	The Middle East Economic Research Community in Europe.....	3
1.2.1	A Specific Profile .....	3
1.2.2	Institutional Affiliation of European Economic Research on the Middle East.....	4
1.2.2.1	Institutional Structures .....	4
1.2.2.2	The Impact of Institutional Affiliation and Funding Schemes.....	6
2	The Choice of Research Topics, Methods and Theories.....	7
2.1	The Spectrum of Research Topics .....	7
2.1.1	Factors Contributing to the Choice of Research Topics .....	7
2.1.2	Are There Any Clear Patterns in the Choice of Research Topics? .....	9
2.1.2.1	General Scientific Research on Middle Eastern Economic Systems vs. Application-Oriented Analysis.....	9
2.1.2.2	Focus on Topics of Economic, Political and Social Relevance for the Societies Concerned.....	10
2.1.2.3	Thematic Selectivity – Some Empirical Findings .....	10
2.2	The Choice of Research Methods and Instruments.....	17
2.2.1	The Lack of Data and its Consequences for the Methodological Approaches .....	17
2.2.2	Other Factors Impacting on the Choice of Research Methods and Instruments .....	19
2.3	Theories, Paradigms and Concepts .....	20
2.3.1	Empirical Findings Concerning Theories, Paradigms and Concepts .....	20
2.3.2	What Shapes Theoretical and Thematic Preferences – Methodological Constraints or the Researcher’s Background? .....	22
3	Essentialism and Economic Research on the Region.....	23
3.1	Essentialist Approaches – Periodic Disappearance and Return .....	23
3.2	The “Middle East” as a Distinct Region .....	27
4	The “Other” and the Opportunity to Fundamentally Criticise the Established Politico-Economic System – of the “Other” .....	27
5	References .....	29