

Contents

Introduction	1
Methodological Remarks: ‘Bucolic’ or ‘Pastoral’ Genre	1
Theocritus and the Formation of a Bucolic Genre	11
Post-Theocritean Bucolics: The Continuation of a Genre ...	20
Vergil vs. Pre-Vergilian Pastoral:
The Construction of the Roman Genre	26
Post-Vergilian Pastoral: ‘Generic Expansion’	35
Language and Style / the Term Callimachean – Neoteric:
Methodological Remarks	50
Aims of the Present Study: Defining Pastoral Song Exchange	51
Corydon vs. Thyrsis in the Seventh Eclogue: Why Not a Draw? ..	54
‘Unpastoral Dispositions’ and Neoteric Defects	57
Frigidity of Style and Character:
Winter Imagery and τὸ ψυχρὸν	62
Gods, Goddesses and Daphnis the Referee	66
Neoteric Language and Style	72
Conclusions	85
Generic Issues in Vergilian Pastoral Again: The Third Eclogue ..	87
The Cups and the Ecphrasis	88
The Bickering Scene	95
The Poetic Contest	111
Eros	112
The ‘Unfriendly Landscape’	117
Eros ... Continued	119
Last but not Least: the Puzzling Riddles	120
The End of the Singing Match	122
Conclusions	124
The Poetics of Recusatio : The Eighth Eclogue	125
The Dedication Part	126
The Narrative Frame	130

Damon's Song	133
Alphesiboeus' Song	144
Conclusion	151
Reviving Pastoral: Vergil and his Fifth Bucolic	153
'An Epitome of Generic History'	153
The Framing Narrative	154
Mopsus' Performance	157
Menalcas' Performance	168
Closure	179
Poetic Initiation Settings	182
Conclusion	183
Memory Destroyed: A Reading of the Ninth Eclogue	184
The Preliminaries	185
Song Exchange	194
Linguistic Characterisation	207
Conclusion	211
Pastoral Hybridism: Poetics of Meta-language in Calpurnius Siculus' Amoebaean Songs – Calp. 2	213
The Prerequisites	214
The Singing Match	221
The draw	235
Linguistic Realism	237
Conclusion	238
Pastoral Backgrounds – 'Unpastoral' Foregrounds: The Fourth Calpurnian Eclogue	239
The Introductory Narrative	240
The Song Exchange	259
Diction and 'Generic Novelty'	275
Conclusion	278
Epic Excellence in Pastoral: A Reading of the First Einsiedeln Eclogue	280
The Introductory Setting	281

Ladas' Song	288
Thamyras' Song	293
Conclusion	295
Elegiac vs. Pastoral Again: Reading the Second Eclogue of Nemesianus'		297
The Narrative Framing	298
Idas' Song	303
Alcon's Song	313
Conclusion	319
The Rematch: Reading Nemesianus' Fourth Eclogue		321
The Narrative Framing	321
The Song Exchange	326
Conclusion	337
Bibliography	339
General Index	369	