Contents

Foreword and Acknowledgements 9

Introduction 11

I. A Cognitive Approach to Literature 15
1. Cognitive Poetics: scope and possibilities of a new discipline 15
1.1 "Is it cognitive yet?" Origins of the discipline 16
1.2 Cross-disciplinary influences 21
1.2.1 Cognitive poetics and cognitive psychology 22
1.2.2 Cognitive poetics and evolution psychology 29
1.2.3 Cognitive poetics and cognitive linguistics 36
1.2.4 Cognitive poetics and cognitive semiotics 47
1.3 Some criticism and a few responses 52
2. Peter Weiss: our case study 58
2.1 Questions and objectives of this study 58
2.2. The choice of Peter Weiss 59
2.3 The selection of the texts 65
2.4 Methodology 67
2.4.1 Enunciation 68
2.4.2 Semantic content: from force-dynamics: to narrative dynamic models 73
2.4.3 Figure and ground 78
2.4.4 Blending theory and conceptual integration: a transatlantic view 80

II. "Der Schatten des Körpers des Kutschers" 87
1. Introduction to the text 87
2. Narrating voice and viewpoint: the "I" between teller and reflector 91
3. Tense, viewpoint and focus: time structure of the narrative 99
4. The narrative of perception 107
5. Dialogue fragments and failed communication 118
6. Seeing and writing: integration at the meta-narrative level 121
7. Overview and interpretation: the cognitive architecture of perception and the modernist tradition 129

Bibliografische Informationen
http://d-nb.info/1000422011

digitalisiert durch DEUTSCHE NATIONAL BIBLIOTHEK

III. "Abschied von den Eltern" and "Fluchtpunkt" 137
1. Autobiography between cognitive science and narratology 137
1.1 Auto: the self in cognitive neuroscience and literature 141
1.2 Bio: the remembered life and autobiographical truth 155
1.3 Graphia: narrative, language and the structure of experience 164
1.4 Overview 171
2. "Abschied von den Eltern" 173
2.1 Contextalization of the text 173
2.2 The role of time in the organization of memory 178
2.3 The self divided 191
2.4 History and the personal story: a figure and ground approach 197
2.5 The personal story: a force-dynamic account 204
3. "Fluchtpunkt" 214
3.1 Contextualization of the text 214
3.2 Time, self and the continuity of autobiographic identity 221
3.3 Staging and reflecting memory 228
3.4 Dialogue as a stage for anamnesis 231
3.5 Self-liberation: the diegetic structure of an internal conflict 247
4. Peter Weiss' autobiography: where literature meets consciousness 251

IV. "Die Ästhetik des Widerstands" 255
1. Introduction to the work 255
2. "Ich würde schreiben, was sie mir
nie gesagt hatten." – The Enunciation Structure 263
2.1 "Wunschautobiographie":
on the relationbetween the narrator and the author 264
2.2 Embedded enunciation and the role of the narrator 272
2.3 Epistemic scope and viewpoint shifts: the case of Lotte Bischoff 276
2.4 Blended enunciation: the case of The Raft of the Medusa 279
2.5 Overview: the enunciation structure and meaning effects 284
3. Aesthetics, resistance and the narrative structure 285
3.1 Elements of resistance in "Die Ästhetik des Widerstands":
the narrative opening 286
3.2 Resistance: a force-dynamic concept 292
3.3 Force-dynamics, resistance and time frame of the narrative 303
3.4 Aesthetics, hermeneutics and resistance 314
3.5 "Sich auszudrücken wagen":
Aesthetics and the individual resistance 320
3.6 The form as continuity of the force-dynamic schema 325
4. Overview and interpretation 333

V. Studying literature with cognition in mind:
overview and conclusions 341
1. Representations of cognition in literature 341
2. Cognitive explorations of literature:
a model for cognitive literary studies 348
3. Transversal reading: towards Peter Weiss' mind style? 349
4. Conclusions 354

Bibliography 357