Acknowledgements ........................................................................................................ 11
Introduction .................................................................................................................. 14

Intermediary Rule and International Intervention 16 * Armed Groups and Liberal Statebuilding 19 * Conflict and Intervention in a Local Space: The Case of Ituri 23 * An Approach of Figurational Sociology 27

I. Refiguration: International Politics and Societies-at-War................................. 37

Discourse and Practice of Intervention 38 * Democracy without Demos 42 * The Legitimacy of Violence 48 * The International Community and its Other 50

II. Intervention and Invention: The Establishment of Indirect Rule............. 53

Only Cattle, Clans and Clients? Ituri's Pre-colonial Past 56 * The Creation of Intermediaries: Colonial Rule 67 * De-Structured Domination: In the Post-colony 82 * Ituri's Trajectory in the 20th Century 102

III. New Chiefs in the Far West? Armed Groups in Ituri's Civil War.......... 105

IV. Figuration of Uncertainty: International Challenge to Local Militias 146

V. The Uneasy Community: International Agencies on the Ground............187

* Monuc Has No Intelligence” 193 * Ituri’s International Community 199 * Jumble in the Jungle 203 * A Society of Organizations 207

VI. Statebuilding and Intermediary Rule..........................................................209

* Local Institutions and International Intervention 210 * The “Unhappy Marriage”: Monuc and FARDC 220 * Indirect Rule and 21st Century Statebuilding 236

VII. Conclusion: The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly? Intervention, Rebels, and Rulers.............................................................................................................239

* Continuity and Modifications of Indirect Rule in Ituri 240 * Exception and Rule: Comparing Ituri 249 * Colonialism Re-invented? 253

Appendix..................................................................................................................257

* Maps 259 * Abbreviations 263 * Interviews 266 * Bibliography 269 * Index 290