Contents

Contributors ................................................................. vii

Introduction: The semantics–pragmatics interface from linguistic and metalinguistic perspectives ................................. 1
Enikő Németh T. and Károly Bibok

Part One
Issues of referentiality

On the definiteness effect in existential sentences: Data and theories . . . 25
Márta Maleczki

On the semantics and pragmatics of shifted indexicals ............... 57
Zoltán Vecsey

Demonstratives and reference to individuated objects vs. reference to properties of objects: A contrastive analysis ...................... 95
Thorstein Fretheim

Part Two
Scalar implicatures and beyond

Two experiments and some suggestions on the meaning of scalars and numerals ............................................................... 125
Napoleon Katsos and Richard Breheny

Some experimental aspects of optimality theoretic pragmatics ......... 161
Reinhard Blutner

Part Three
Pragmatic ways from words to constructions and utterances

The cognitive background of grammaticalization ..................... 207
Katalin Nagy C.

From syntactic alternations to lexical pragmatics ..................... 261
Károly Bibok
Contents

How lexical-semantic factors influence the verbs’ occurrence with implicit direct object arguments in Hungarian .................. 305
Enikő Németh T.

Co-constructing what is said in interaction .................. 349
Michael Haugh

Data-gathering methods in research on hyperbole production and interpretation .................................................. 381
Attila L. Nemesi

Index ............................................................................. 419