TABLE OF CONTENTS

SPEECH OF ACCEPTANCE OF HONORARY DEGREE FROM CHEMNITZ UNIVERSITY OF TECHNOLOGY

José Manuel Barroso ............................................................................................................ xi

FOREWORD

Viriato Soromenho-Marques ................................................................................................ xv

INTRODUCTION

Teresa Pinheiro, Beata Cieszynska and José Eduardo Franco ........................................ 1

I - IDEAS OF EUROPE – A HISTORICAL APPROACH

Almut-Barbara Renger ......................................................................................................... 11

Ideas of Europe in Strabo’s Geography

Paula Carreira and Susana Alves-Jesus ................................................................................ 29

Europe and the Other: Roots of European Identity in Greco-Roman Antiquity

Andreas Hartmann ............................................................................................................... 37

Medieval Europe – Object and Ideology

Klaus Oschema ..................................................................................................................... 59

On the Problem of Forming a European Spirit – Montesquieu’s De l’Esprit de lois (1748)

Joshua Bandoch .................................................................................................................. 75

Cosmopolitan Perspectives on Europe: Wieland’s Idea of Europe before, during and after the French Revolution

Dominic Eggel ..................................................................................................................... 89

Hubs of Modernism – Paris, Berlin and Zürich 1880-1916

Cecilia Hansson ................................................................................................................... 105

A Peace Made of War

Christian Blasberg .............................................................................................................. 115

SOS Europa: Cultural Pessimism in the German Discourse on Europe during the Interwar Years

Verena Gutsche .................................................................................................................... 131

Visions of Europe and Revolution in the Intersecting Activist and Resistance Trajectories of Harro Schulze-Boysen and Alexandre Marc

Christian Roy ....................................................................................................................... 147

“Old Europe” – Career, Troubles and Potentials of a Concept

Hiram Kümper ...................................................................................................................... 161
"(Re)joining the Community of Letters?" – The Circulation of Uncensored Literature in/of Cold War Europe
Friederike Kind-Kovács ......................................................... 173

One World, Two Philosophical Traditions: Maritain’s and Kojeve’s Visions of World Unification and European Integration
James Fetter ................................................................. 191

II – IDEAS OF EUROPE FROM ITS PERIPHERIES

The Vision of Europe in Polish Literature against a Background of Other Slavic Literatures
Halina Janaszek-Ivanicková ..................................................... 207

Marcin Bielski’s Kronika wszystkiego świata – The Chronicles of the Whole World as a Great Vision of the Old Continent
Ewa Cybulska-Bohuszewsic and Paweł Bohuszewicz ......................... 223

Being the Face of Europe or Bringing Up the Rear – Ideas of Europe in Portugal, 16th to 18th Century
José Eduardo Franco and Teresa Pinheiro ..................................... 231

The New Face of Europe: Literary Images of a Post-Colonial Continent – A Portuguese Portrait
Micaela Ramon ................................................................. 251

Germany, Spain and Europe
Walther L. Bernecker .......................................................... 261

Province on a Hill: South Tyrol as a Microcosm of European Federalism
Phillip M. Alday ............................................................... 271

Ideas of Europe and European Union in Turkey
Eduard Alan Bulut ............................................................ 285

Europe as the Other in Contemporary Balkan Literatures
Anastasija Gjurcinova .......................................................... 297

Views on the Quisling and In-Exile “New Europe”: The Greek Case, 1941-1944
Alexandra Patrikiou ............................................................ 303

Ideas of Europe between Sebastianism and Sarmatism: A Comparative Perspective
Beata Elżbieta Cieszynska ...................................................... 313

Ideas of Western Europe in Political Discussions of the Late Russian Empire (1905-1914)
Benjamin Beuerle ............................................................. 327

III – EUROPEAN IDENTITY

The European Identity – A Generative Concept
Andrei Marga ................................................................. 343
The European Pendulum: From Exclusion to Hospitality, from Transgression to Cultural Difference

Nadja Stamselberg ................................................................. 355

Thinking about Europe: Bauman, Kertész and Žižek on the Role of the Individual

Mare van den Eeden .................................................................. 367

Enlightenment’s Wake? Or the Condemnation to Modernity as the Only Exit for a European Identity

Onésimo T. Almeida .................................................................. 381

Europe, or the Seduction of Lost Time

Eduardo Lourenço .................................................................... 389

The Missing Word in the Idea of Europe

Luis Machado de Abreu ............................................................ 397

Cultural Identity / Identities for Europe: Does It Serve Any Purpose?

Maria Manuel Baptista ............................................................. 405

Who Are We, the Europeans? What Europeans Can Learn from the USA about Their Own Political Identity

Viriato Soromenho-Marques ....................................................... 413

IV – EUROPEAN MEMORY

The Holocaust in European Historical Culture

Klas-Göran Karlsson ............................................................... 427

European Memory and Mittelbau-Dora; Research Initiatives at a Nazi Concentration Camp Memorial

Bruno Arich-Gerz and Isabel Werle ........................................ 441

Oskar Schindler and Raoul Wallenberg – National, European and American Heroes

Ulf Zander ................................................................................. 453

Coming to Terms with Histories: Heritage of Communism and Nazism in Trans-Boundary Historical Culture

Kristian Gerner ........................................................................ 465

The Discourse of European Identity in Current Spanish Life: An Analysis of Various Examples of Holocaust Remembrance and Representation

Luisa Juárez Hervás ................................................................ 477

V – EUROPE AS SEEN BY OTHERS

Europe as Seen from Africa

János Riesz .............................................................................. 505

Wartime Europe as Seen by Others – Indian and African Soldiers in Europe in WWI

Christian Koller ...................................................................... 517
Europe as Seen from Brazil
Valmir Muraro ................................................................. 529

A Global Power’s View on a Regional Player: Henry Kissinger’s Year of Europe
Judith Michel ................................................................. 539

Ideas of Europe in Post-Colonial African Lusophone Literature
Fernanda Cristina Santos .............................................. 555

VI – EUROPE AND ITS PROSPECTS

Germany, Europe and the Southern Mediterranean: Geography and Geopolitics
Bodo Freund ................................................................. 577

Following the Successful System Change and the Euphoria of Accession: Euroscepticism in East Central Europe
Florian Hartleb ............................................................. 593

The Prospect of a Political Europe: A Matter of Political Regime or a Matter of System of Government?
Carlos Leone ............................................................... 607

EU’s Restructuring – Assignment of a New Course and a New Meaning to European Integration
Grigore Silasi, Teodora Dogaru and Alexandra Daroga-Dogaru .......... 617

Towards a More Inclusive European Immigration Policy
Alexej Ulbricht ............................................................. 627

Globalisation as Europeanisation
Peeter Muursepp ............................................................. 639

Back to the Roots – Emotionalising Europe
Martin Gerner ................................................................ 651

A Return to the Future? Europe in the Present Moment of Crisis: Elements of a Diagnosis and First Orientations towards a Therapy
Frieder Otto Wolf ......................................................... 663

EPILOGUE
Zygmunt Bauman ............................................................ 695

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS .................................................. 713