Contents

Abbreviations of Frequently Cited Works x

Introduction
1. Recognition 6
2. Tragedy 8
3. The Kantian Frame
   1. Hegel’s Criticism of Kant and Jacobi 10
   2. Critique of Foundationalism: Decentering the Subject 12
   3. Hegel’s True Infinite as Social Infinity: Panentheism 15
   5. Overcoming the Kantian Frame 21
4. The Death of God and Theodicy after the Death of God 26
5. Acknowledgments 29

Part I. Recognition

1. Hegel and Nietzsche: Recognition and Master/Slave 33
   1. Hegel: Recognition and Master/Slave 34
   2. Deleuze: Nietzsche Anti-Hegel 38
   3. Recognition and Representation 40
   4. Is Recognition Inherently Servile? 44
   5. Genealogy, Hierarchy, and the Question of Community 47
2. Aristotle, Hegel, and Nietzsche on Friendship 54
   1. Aristotle on Greatness of Soul (Megalopsychia) 58
   2. Aristotle on Philia 63
   3. Limitations and Questions 68
   4. Nietzsche: Two Views of Friendship 69
   5. An Agonic Model of Friendship? 73
   6. Hegel: Recognition, Friendship, Social Virtues 77
   7. Love and the Virtues: Hegel’s Early Theological Writings 83
3. The Agōn, Recognition, and the Question of Community 87
   1. The Agōn 88
   2. Affirmative Social Ontology in Human, All Too Human 91
   3. Social Ontology in Nietzsche’s Later Writings 94
   4. The Tragic Type: Transgressive Experimentation 100
   5. The Agōn and the Will to Power 106

---

Bibliografische Informationen
http://d-nb.info/1028307810
digitalisiert durch
Part II. Tragedy

Philosophy and Tragedy 115

4. Hegel's Conception of Tragedy 120
   I. Fate, Love, and Reconciliation in the Early Theological Writings 120
   II. Tragedy and Dialectic 124
   III. Preliminary Survey of Hegel's Concept of Tragedy 125
      1. The Background Assumptions of Tragedy 126
      2. Action 126
      3. Resolution 127
   IV. Background of the Tragic: The Divine-Human Ethical Order 127
   V. Action 130
   VI. Tragic Resolution 136

5. Nietzsche on Tragedy 143
   I. The Tragic Myth 144
   II. Apollinian and Dionysian Themes 150
   III. The Philosophical-Conceptual Articulation of the Tragic Myth 152

Part III. Overcoming the Kantian Frame: The True Infinite

6. Hegel’s Concept of the True Infinite 161
   I. The True Infinite According to Wallace 167
   II. The True Infinite Corrected: Stephen Houlgate's The Opening of Hegel's Logic 171
   III. The True Infinite and Hegel's Theology: Questions 173
   IV. The Stubbornness of Finitude: The Kantian Frame 175
   V. Critique of Kant's Postulates: The Ought 177
   VI. The Dialectical Self-Sublation of Finitude 180
   VII. Reversal: The True Infinite Includes the Finite 183
   VIII. Summary and Conclusion 185

7. Hegel's Recasting of Theological Proofs 190
   I. Kant: The God-Question Both Inevitable and Impossible to Answer 190
   II. Critique of Kant's God Postulate and Attack on the Theological Proofs 192
   III. Jacobi's Objection and its Contribution 197
   IV. Recasting the Cosmological Argument as Ascent of Spirit to God 203
   V. The Ontological Proof 206
      1. Anselm's Argument: Its Defect 206
      2. The Difference and Identity Between Concept and Being 210
      3. The Wound of Cognition 213
      4. Healing the Wound of Cognition 215
      5. Being as the Self-Specification of the Concept 216
      6. Culmination of the Ascent: The Speculative Reversal 219
   VI. The Ontological Proof, Absolute Spirit, and God's Ethical Aseity 224
Part IV. God Beyond the Death of God

8. Theogenesis, Divine Suffering, Demythologizing the Demonic
   I. Iljin on Speculative Concreteness 232
   II. Hegel's Logic as Speculative Theology 236
   III. Hegel's Panlogist Pantheism and Its Crisis 240
   IV. Towards an Evaluation of Iljin's Thesis 241
   V. O'Regan's and Ricoeur's Theogonic Readings of Hegel 244
   VI. The Tragic Coincidence of Evil with Finitude: Human Imputability 247
   VII. Hegel's Rejection of Tragic Theology and Theogony 256

9. Nietzsche on the Death of God and Eternal Recurrence
   I. Living with Nihilism: Nietzsche's Tragic Experimentalism 264
   II. Nietzsche's Tragic Experimentalism and Irony 269
   III. Eternal Recurrence 272
   IV. The Incoherence of Eternal Recurrence: Karl Löwith 275
   V. The Coherence of Eternal Recurrence: Will Dudley 277
   VI. Joyous Fatalism: Nietzschean Religion and Theology 283

10. Hegel on the Death of God: The Inseparability of Love and Anguish
    I. Introduction 290
    II. The Suppression of Otherness and Tragedy in Traditional Philosophy and Theology 291
    III. The Death of God and Divine Suffering 296
    IV. Theopassianism, Metaphysics, and Ontotheology 302
    V. Traditional Ontotheology as the Subjective Impotence of Reason 304
    VI. The Appropriation of Reconciliation 312
    VII. Hegel's Critique of Modernity: The Separation of Love from Anguish 314

11. Nietzsche's Aesthetic Theodicy
    I. Nietzsche's Atheist Theodicy of This-World Redemption 324
    II. Michel Haar: Theodicy After the Death of God 326
    III. Haar's Three Nietzschean Theodicies 330
    IV. The Metaphysics of the One: There is a Whole 331
    V. Anti-metaphysics: Nietzsche's Recoil against Identity and Totality 333
    VI. The Tragic Absolute: Heraclitus, Hegel, and Nietzsche 335
    VII. Final Questions 344

12. Hegel's Death of God Theodicy
    I. Beyond the Moral God: Harris and Iljin on Hegel's Theodicy 352
    II. The Death of God as the Speculative Intuition 358
    III. Theology and Tragedy: Ricoeur and Hegel on Job 360
    IV. World History as Court of World Judgment: Reconciliation in Hegel's Theodicy 364
    V. The Slaughterhouse: Dysteleological Evil and Divine Consolation 372
    VI. The Alien Work of Love: Hegel and Tillich on Divine Love and Creativity 378

Selected Bibliography 391
Index of Persons 401
Subject Index 403