

Contents

Acknowledgements	vii
Introduction	xi
PART I
The British and the Mughals	1
1. Establishing British Rule	3
2. Religion and Piety	29
3. Families and Communities of Common Descent	57
4. The Passing Away of the White Mughals and the Rise of a New Public Sphere	87
5. Noble Women, Courtesans, and Women's Moral Reform	125
6. The City and Its Spatial Order	153
7. Conflict between the Religious Communities	179
PART II
1857 and Its Aftermath	205
8. The 1857 Rebellion	207

PART III

The Heyday of the British Empire	239
9. Nobility and Middle Classes	241
10. Religious Identities between Secularization and Re-Islamization	269
11. Education: The Colonial System and Cultural Nationalism	297
12. Civil Society and the Colonial Municipal Administration	323
13. The New Woman	355
14. The Politicization of Communities: Communalism and Nationalism	379
Conclusion	419
Bibliography	445
Index	487
About the Author	505