Contents

Foreword — v
Contributors — ix

Maud Devos and Jenneke van der Wal
Introduction — 1

Passives

Anna Giacalone Ramat and Andrea Sansò
Venire (‘come’) as a passive auxiliary in Italian — 21

Egle Mocciaro
Passive in motion: the Early Italian auxiliary andare (‘to go’) — 45

Adina Dragomirescu and Alexandru Nicolae
The Multiple Grammaticalization of Romanian veni ‘come’.
Focusing on the Passive Construction — 69

Mood and modality

Philippe Bourdin
When come and go go necessive — 103

Caterina Mauri and Andrea Sansò
Go and come as sources of directive constructions — 165

Discourse functions

Ana Bravo
The Spanish auxiliary ir ‘to go’: from resultative motion verb to focus marker — 187

Kelsey Daniels
On the grammaticalization of venga ‘come’ as a discourse marker
in Peninsular Spanish — 219
Robert Carlson
The grammaticalization of 'go' as an intensifier in Supyire — 249

Maud Devos
Motion verbs in Shangaci: lexical semantics and discourse functions — 281

Conclusion

Maud Devos and Jenneke van der Wal
How far have we come and where do we go from here?
Discussion and directions for further research — 321

Subject index — 337
Language index — 341