Table of Contents

A Treasure for Prayer
A Lucky Coincidence — Christian High Feasts and the Passion — Prayer Books between Library and Treasury — Girdle Books for Men — Little Treasures for Women — A Delightful Tradition until the era of Emperor Rudolf II — A Unique Binding from Prague around 1600 — And Yet Another Happy Coincidence 13

A Book Made for Claude of France

The Illuminator
Sterling’s Definition of the Master of Claude of France — Janet Backhouse’s Objections — The Basis for Further Attributions — Illumination in Tours in the Aftermath of Fouquet and the Changing Perspectives of Scholarly Attributions — A Rapidly Growing Œuvre since 1975 48

From Bourdichon’s Specialist of Border Decoration to the Court Painter of the Queen?

The Sequence of Text and Image
81
The Calendar
82
The Office of the Virgin and the Mixed Hours of the Holy Cross, Hours of the Holy Spirit and the Hours of the Conception of the Virgin

The Penitential Psalms and the Litany

The Selection of Saints — Nathan Forces David to Do Penitence for the Opening of the Penitential Psalms (fol. 78)

The Office of the Dead

An Image of Job for Vespers (fol. 91) — Job’s Friends and Job on the Dung Heap for Matins (fol. 97) — Job on the Dung Heap Discussing with His Friends for Lauds (fol. 112)

Annotations

Résumé in Form of a Catalogue Entry

Technical Notes — The Binding — Provenance — Text and Illustrations — Script and Decoration — The Master of Claude of France: Eloy Tassart — Scholarship on Our Book of Hours

Annex I

On the Provenance of the Hours of Queen Claude of France

Annex II

Two Printed Books of Hours from the Bibermühle Collection That Are Probably Related to Claude of France

Plates

Bibliography

Exhibition Catalogues — Contributions Listed by Author