CONTENTS

Acknowledgments vii
Abbreviations ix

Introduction 3
1. Towards Pathos: Preliminary Considerations 9
   The Projected Other and the Prophetic Mystical Option 10
   Towards a Widening of Concern: The Context for Divine Pathos 15
   The Prophet’s Theodicy: A “Robust” and Dialogical Relationship Between God and the Prophet(s) 16
   The Meaning of This Hour/Versuch einer Deutung 19
   Consenting to Love 24
2. Towards a Hermeneutics of Empathy: Mystery, Being, Subjectivity 27
   Not Being but The Mystery of Being 28
   Rahner’s Vorgriff: “Experiencing” the Ineffable 29
   God the Subject, Man the Object 33
   Reprise: A Levinasian Echo in Heschel? 36
3. Pathos and Sympathy 43
   The Personalism of Pathos 44
   Sympathetic Solidarity 47
   Towards a Contemporary Prophetic Witness: Sympathy as Surrender? 49
   Ways to Know God: Partnering with God and the World 51
   Sympathy Shaping Pathos: Beyond Surrender through Mutuality 53
   Neither Self-Abnegation nor Self-Infatuation: Mutuality 55
   Empathy: “Real Love is Creative of Distinction” 56
   ‘Con-primordiality’: The Non-Dissolution of The “I” 57
4. On Empathy 61
   Beginnings of Einfühlung: Life in a Jewish Family, The Lazaretto 63
   The Givenness of Einfühlung 67
   Einfühlung as Con-primordial: Dyadic 68
   Empathy’s Dyadic Structure 70
Contents

Heschel on Empathy 71
Empathy’s Dialogical Structure: Trans-subjectivity’s Reprise 72
Empathy’s Intention: The Rehumanization of the Other 76

5. A Finite and Eternal Being: Conversion and Carmel 81
Reinach’s Personalism: a New Horizon 81
Stein on Woman: A Comprehensive Sympathy 85
Behind the Walls of Carmel: Kenotic Fragments of a Wider, Pathic Concern 87
“If The Silence Continues”: Edith Stein’s 1933 Letter to Pope Pius XI 88
Humani Generis Unitas and Finite and Eternal Being: A Hermeneutic of Contrast 92

The Unity and Plurality of Social Life: The Positive Anthropology of Humani Generis Unitas 94
Stein’s Hermeneutic: “I Am Who I Am”—God’s Being-in-Persons 96

6. Beyond the Walls of Carmel 101
A Christology of Anti-Sacrifice: Empathy’s Kenosis Towards a Renewed Jewish-Catholic Solidarity 105
The “Science” of Kenosis: Stein’s Phenomenological Christology 108
Towards a “Crucified” Mindfulness 110
“Like a Fire Burning”: A Habitus-for-Loving 112
Remembering the Woundedness of the World 113
Beyond the Walls of Carmel 114

7. Stein’s Kenosis: Reimaging Witnessing 121
The Kenosis of Caritas 122
Embodying Empathy: A Wider Relationality 126
A Metaphor for Stein: The “Mandorla” Witness 127
The smar in Martyr: Witnessing as Remembering 129
Heschel’s Empathic Reprise for Christianity: Kavanah 131
Towards a Conclusion: Empathic Witnessing as Interreligious Dialogue 139

Notes 149
Index 177