Content

5 Rudolf Kast
Introduction

7 Prof. Dr. Axel Börsch-Supan
Preface

11 Marcel Basedow
1. Results of the ddn working group Securing the future and retirement provision in a corporate environment
1.1 The „Securing the future and retirement provision in a corporate environment“ working group within ddn
1.2 Main focal points of the working group’s work in the past and in the future

21 Michael Hennig, Marcel Basedow, Rudolf Kast, Christof Zimmermann
2. Strategies for ensuring higher acceptance levels for company pensions
2.1 Status quo: employee participation in salary conversion remains insufficient
2.2 A model participation and communications process for an employee-financed company pension scheme (salary conversion)
2.3 Alternative and supplementary models to boost participation in salary conversion
2.4 Evaluation of the various models
2.5 Digression: The role played by collective pay scale agreements in salary conversion
2.6 Summary of the various participatory models
2.7 Support fund covered by an indirect insurance policy – the practical example of GKN Driveline Deutschland GmbH
2.8 Practical examples “life-cycle oriented working hours structures”

49 Eric Morel
3. The chemical formula for demographic change – collective pay-scale provisions in the chemicals industry
3.1 Collective pay-scale retirement provision in the chemicals industry
3.2 The “Working life and demography” collective pay scale agreement
3.3 The structure of the long-term accounts
3.4 Life-phase oriented working time structures in the chemicals industry

Bibliografische Informationen
http://d-nb.info/1049904532
Barbara Nauditt, Norbert Klein
4. Collective pay-scale provisions on retirement provision in the metal and electronics industry

4.1 Collective pay scale agreement on salary conversion

4.2 Institutional social partnership: MetallRente – a joint institution set up by the Gesamtmetall employers’ association and IG Metall trade union

4.3 Collective pay scale agreement on tax-free employer grants for retirement provision purposes (AVWL)

4.4 Conclusion and outlook

Klaus Plütsch
5. Company pensions as a strategic tool for company demography management

Tobias Hackmann, Christoph Müller
6. Benefit and sustainability gap in the long-term care – status quo and recommended courses of action

6.1 The status quo: benefit and sustainability gap in social long-term care insurance

6.2 Recommended courses of action for closing the sustainability and benefit gap

Dr. Peter A. Doetsch und Claus Adam
7. International pension and provision systems – role models for Germany?

7.1 Structures, systems and system comparisons in an international context

7.2 Examples of established systems in neighboring countries

7.3 A look at northern Europe

7.4 Eastern Europe

7.5 Assessment of the experience of other countries and outlook

Authors