Contents

Introduction 1
Theoretical and Methodological Framework 2
Recent Public Intellectual Debate on Europe 8

Part I: World War II and Visions of a Decentralized Europe 17

1 Christopher Dawson: Aristocratic Regionalism and a European Commonwealth, 1912-1952 19
   1.1 English Catholic Intellectuals, Europe and Decentralization 22
   1.2 Christopher Dawson: Anti-Modern Regionalism, Local Rulers and a European Federation 29

2 Ernst Jünger: Tribal Regionalism and a Decentralized European Reich, 1915-1949 42
   2.1 German Ideas of Europe and the Reich 44
   2.2 Ernst Jünger: ‘Freeing’ the Tribes and Re-establishing Christian Authority 50

3 Leopold Kohr: Anarcho-Regionalism and a Europe of Districts, 1941-1977 66

4 John Hewitt: Leftist Ulster Regionalism, 1943-1957 82

Part II: The Fall of Communism, Northern Ireland and Visions of a Decentralized Europe 93

5 Richard Kearney: A Europe of the Regions and the Northern Irish Conflict, 1977-1998 95
   5.1 Richard Kearney: Reimagining Europe and the Isles 96
   5.2 Regionalism, Europe and Northern Ireland 113

6 Neal Ascherson: A Scottish Nationalist Europe of the Regions, 1989-1993 119

7.1 Peter Glotz: An Anti-Nationalist, Neo-Habsburgian Europe of the Regions 128
7.2 The Dahrendorf-Glotz Controversy 143
7.3 German Social Democrats and European Regionalism 152

8 Hans Magnus Enzensberger: Nation-states, European Integration and Cultural Pluralism 159

Conclusion 169

Bibliography 181