
Contents

Constanza Cordoni / Gerhard Langer
Introduction	7
Irmtraud Fischer
Reception of Biblical texts within the Bible: A starting point of midrash? .	15
Ilse Mueller
Celebration and Narration. Metaleptic features in Ex 12:1 – 13,16	25
Agneth Siquans
Midrasch und Kirchenväter: Parallelen und Differenzen in Hermeneutik und Methodologie	39
Carol Bakhos
Reading Against the Grain: Humor and Subversion in Midrashic Literature	71
Joshua Levinson
Post-Classical Narratology and the Rabbinic Subject	81
Paul Mandel
Kidor's Revenge: Murder, Texts and Rabbis – An Analysis of a Rabbinic Tale and its Transmission (BT Yoma 83b)	107
Lorena Miralles Maciá
Judaizing a Gentile Biblical Character through Fictive Biographical Reports: The Case of Bityah, Pharaoh's Daughter, Moses' Mother, according to Rabbinic Interpretations	145

Susanne Plietzsch

"That is what is written" – Retrospective Revelation of the Meaning of a Verse in Aggadic Midrash 177

Gerhard Langer

Lekh Lekha: Midrash Bereshit Rabbah and Tanḥuma to Gen 12:1 187

Constanza Cordoni

The emergence of the individual author(-image) in late rabbinic literature 225

Angelika Neuwirth

The Challenge of Biblical Passion Narratives: Negotiating, Moderating, and Reconstructing Abraham's Sacrifice in the Qur'an 251

Andreas Mauz

"Write what you see and hear". Methodological problems of the poetics of 'sacred text': Hildegard's Protestificatio as revelation narrative 265

Armin Eidherr

Forms and Functions of Midrashic Narrative in Modern Yiddish Literature in the Light of Itzik Manger and Hirsh Osherowitsh 289

Dorothee Gelhard

Maqom als Figur der Profanierung bei Walter Benjamin 301

Literature 325