Table of Contents

Introduction .............................................................................................................................................. 7

Part I Constitutional Review and Separation of Powers

Constitutional Courts and Their Power of Interpretation ............................................................... 15
  André Brodocz

What is ‘Politicisation’ of Constitutional Courts? Towards a Decision-oriented Concept .................. 31
  Michael Hein and Stefan Ewert

  Martin Belov

Part II Constitutional Review in East Central European Countries

Access to Constitutional Justice in the new Hungarian Constitutional Framework: Life after the Actio Popularis? .............................................................. 63
  Katalin Kelemen

‘War of Courts’ as a Clash of Legal Cultures: Rethinking the Conflict Between the Polish Constitutional Tribunal and the Supreme Court Over ‘Interpretive Judgments’ .......................................................... 79
  Rafał Mańko

Part III Theorising the European Union: Constitution, Division of Power, and Sovereignty

Paul Ricœur’s Thought as the Basis for a Political Theory of the European Union .......................... 95
  Marcin Pieniążek
Vertical Division of Powers from the Perspective of the Member States – Police Power in the Context of European Union Constitutionalism? ................................................................. 109
Balázs Fekete

‘Solange, Chapter 5?’ The Law of the European Union and the Sovereignty in Rulings of the Constitutional Courts in Central Europe .................................................................................................................. 125
Mariusz Jerzy Golecki

The Balancing Role of National Parliaments in Transforming the European Union. Towards a Parliamentary Polity? ................................................................. 141
Karolina Ristova-Asterud

Part IV The Common Good, Constitutional Rights and Individual Obligations

The Common Good and Individual Rights ........................................................................ 159
Szilárd Tattay

Towards a ‘Soft’ Concept of the State Neutrality Principle ............................................. 171
Wojciech Ciszewski

Another Brick in the Wall? A Libertarian Outlook on Constitutional Rights, Individual Obligations, and the Boundaries of Legal Consistency ........................................ 185
Axelle Reiter

Ethnic Representation in National Legislatures – Normative Foundations and Challenges .................................................................................................................. 201
Konstantin Sachariew

Contributors ......................................................................................................................... 217