Table of contents

Ralf Vogel, Ruben van de Vijver

Introduction —— 1

Part 1: Concepts of rhythm

Laszlo Hunyadi

1 Grouping, symmetry, and rhythm in language —— 17

Dafydd Gibbon

2 Speech rhythms – modelling the groove —— 53

Part 2: Linguistic rhythm and cognition

Maren Schmidt-Kassow, Kathrin Rothermich and Sonja A. Kotz

3 The role of default stress patterns in German monolingual and L2 sentence processing —— 83

Gerrit Kentner

4 Stress clash hampers processing of noncanonical structures in reading —— 111

Ulrike Domahs, Richard Wiese and Johannes Knaus

5 Word prosody in focus and non-focus position: An ERP-study on the interplay of prosodic domains —— 137

Anne Zimmer-Stahl and Kamila Polisenska

6 Short-term memory in speech perception and prosodic structuring – A syllable span test —— 165
Part 3: Rhythm and grammar in Germanic

Julia Schlüter
7 Rhythmic influence on grammar: scope and limitations — 179

Stephanie Shih, Jason Grafmiller, Richard Futrell, and Joan Bresnan
8 Rhythm’s role in genitive construction choice in spoken English — 207

Anton Karl Ingason
9 Rhythmic preferences in morphosyntactic variation and the theory of loser candidates — 235

Ralf Vogel, Ruben van de Vijver, Sonja Kotz, Anna Kutscher, Petra Wagner
10 Function words in rhythmic optimisation — 255

Alexandra Schladebeck
11 Rhythm as a resource to generate phonetic and phonological coherence in lists — 277

Index — 311