Table of Contents

Introduction ................................................................................................................. 7

Chapter 1 The academic labor market and academic work in Germany: the state of the art in research and theoretical implications .............................................. 19
   Introduction .............................................................................................................. 19
   Academic work ......................................................................................................... 20
   Teaching and research ............................................................................................ 20
   Development ............................................................................................................ 22
   Changing context of academic work ........................................................................ 26
   New-institutionalist analysis of academia ................................................................. 28
   Academic labor market and meanings of teaching .................................................. 32
   Academic labor market in Germany and teaching at a university ......................... 38
   Summary .................................................................................................................. 47

Chapter 2 Towards the evaluation of the agency of teaching academics in the academic labor market in Germany ................................................................. 49
   Introduction .............................................................................................................. 49
   Professional development from the capability perspective ...................................... 50
   Agency and structure: structuralist vs. individualist perspectives ............................. 54
   Structures in the academic labor market .................................................................. 55
   Dissolution of structures .......................................................................................... 60
   Embedding and decoupling as the mechanisms of change ........................................ 60
   Getting action and the problem of meaning: from the structural level back to the individual ................................................................. 62
   The evaluative procedure .......................................................................................... 68
   Summary .................................................................................................................. 71

Chapter 3 Empirical research and findings ................................................................ 73
   Introduction .............................................................................................................. 73
   3.1 Methodology ...................................................................................................... 74
      3.1.1 Choice of qualitative methodology ............................................................. 74

Bibliografische Informationen
http://d-nb.info/1059313219
3.1.2 Method of data collection ........................................... 77
3.1.3 Methods of analysis ................................................. 78
3.1.4 The study sample ..................................................... 78
3.2 Results ........................................................................... 80
3.2.1 Evaluation of development:
   conceptualization of academic work and professional orientations ................. 81
3.2.2 Structures of the academic labor market ...... 96
  3.2.2.1 Formal institutional structures .......... 97
  3.2.2.2 Relational structures ......................... 98
  3.2.2.3 Professional structures ..................... 99
  3.2.2.4 Organizational structures ................. 100
3.2.3 Types of academics as actors contextualized in the structures of the academic labor market and their agency: developmental consequences ..................................................... 101
  3.2.3.1 Type 1 “Narrow professional development orientation” ..................... 102
  3.2.3.2 Type 2 “Broader professional development orientation” ...................... 132

Summary and conclusions ............................................. 156

Conclusion ....................................................................... 163

References ....................................................................... 179

Appendix 1 List of tables .................................................. 199

Appendix 2 Interview guide .............................................. 201

Appendix 3 List of interview participants ......................... 203

Appendix 4 Preliminary indicators for evaluating contextualization of framings of academic teaching and research of young academics in German universities ...... 205