Contents

Marcel Hartwig, Gunter Süß
Media Economies: An Introduction ................................................................. 1

I: Media Branding and the Formation of Identity

Thomas Klein
Web Series – Between Commercial and Non-Profit Seriality ................................. 3

Eero Laine
Producing Consumers: Media, Branding, and the Experience Economy ................. 15

Simone Knewitz
The Aesthetics and Economics of Television Series in the Age of Digital Media ................................................................. 27

Frank Kelleter
Trust and Sprawl: Seriality, Radio, and the First Fireside Chat ......................... 43

II: Teleconomics: Public vs. Private, Broad- vs. Narrowcasting

Darcey Morris
No More Niche – ‘Widercasting’ and Cable’s Broad Move ..................................... 65

Bärbel Göbel-Stolz
Public Industry: The Commercialization of German Public Broadcasting ............. 79

Seth Hulse
Economic Repositioning for a More Viable Media Ethics:
A Case Study of CBS and the Hiring of Scott Pelley ....................................... 101

Gregory Vance Smith
Amateur Podcasts and the Cultural (Re)Production and Distribution of Genre Media ........................................................................... 117
Ill: Globalization and Corporate Culture

Daniel Stein
Popular Seriality, Authorship, Superhero Comics:
On the Evolution of a Transnational Genre Economy ........................................... 133

Monika Pietrzak-Franger
Serial Politics of Appropriation and Transmedia Storytelling:
From Breaking Bad to the Occupy Movement .......................................................... 159

Sophie G. Einwächter
Fantastic Fan Marketing – Fantasy Fan Online-Communities
and Conventions as Markets of Cultural Goods ...................................................... 179

Notes on Contributors ............................................................................................. 199