Contents

Acknowledgements
List of Figures
List of Contributors

Introduction: Antiquity, Globalization, and Constructions of the Past in South Asia, Mesoamerica, and Europe

_Ute Schüren, Daniel Marc Segesser, Thomas Späth_

Part I Constructions of the Past in and about South Asia

_Between Uniqueness and Diversity – Historical Developments and Historiography in South Asia: A Brief Introduction_

_Daniel Marc Segesser_

Chapter 1 Historical Traditions: Were They Absent in Early India?

_Romila Thapar_

Chapter 2 Constructions of the Past in and about India: From Jahiliyya to the Cradle of Civilization. Pre-colonial Perceptions of India

_Jamal Malik_

Chapter 3 Ancient History as a Means of Transforming Colonial India in the Late-Eighteenth and Early-Nineteenth Centuries

_Daniel Marc Segesser_

Chapter 4 The Concept of a Classical Age in India’s Contemporary Politics

_Jakob Rösel_

Chapter 5 The Politics of National Histories in Urban Space: (Re-)Constructing Islamic Architecture in Early Post-colonial Delhi

_Clemens Six_

Part II Mesoamerica and Constructions of the Past

_Mesoamerica: A Brief Introduction_

_Ute Schüren_

Chapter 6 Primordial Times in Mesoamerican Memory: Monuments, Tombs, and Codices

_Maarten E.R.G.N. Jansen_
Chapter 7 Imagining a Nation: Elite Discourse and the Native Past in Nineteenth-Century Mexico
Wolfgang Gabbert .................................................................................................................. 189

Chapter 8 Decolonizing Memory: The Case of the Ñuu Sau (Mixtec People), Mexico
Gabina Aurora Pérez Jiménez............................................................................................... 211

Chapter 9 On the History of Archaeological Research in Mesoamerica, with Particular Reference to Pre-Columbian Maya Civilization
Jeremy A. Sabloff ................................................................................................................. 219

Chapter 10 Heirs of the Ancient Maya: Indigenous Organizations and the Appropriation of History in Yucatán, Mexico, and Guatemala
Ute Schüren .......................................................................................................................... 231

Part III Images of European Antiquity and the Perception of Non-European Cultures

European "Classical Antiquity": A Brief Introduction
Thomas Späth ....................................................................................................................... 253

Chapter 11 The Path of Ruins in the Graeco-Roman World
Alain Schnapp ...................................................................................................................... 259

Chapter 12 Füssli, Schlegel, and Lucian: A "True Story" about Late Eighteenth-Century Fragmented Antiquity
Manuel Baumbach ............................................................................................................... 281

Chapter 13 The Making of a Bourgeois Antiquity: Wilhelm von Humboldt and Greek History
Stefan Rebenich ................................................................................................................... 297

Conclusion

Chapter 14 Provincializing Antiquity? Uses of the Past Compared Thomas Späth ....................................................................................................................... 319

Index of Personal Names ..................................................................................................... 339
Index of Geographical Names ............................................................................................. 343
Index of Subjects .................................................................................................................. 346