Table of contents

Introduction .......................................................................................................................................................................................... 7

Chapter One – The dialectics of orality and textuality ....................................................................................................................... 19

  I  Aspects of orality in The Irish For No ................................................................................................................................. 21
      The turn .................................................................................................................................................................................. 21
      The revival of the oral tradition ............................................................................................................................................. 22
      The dialectic ........................................................................................................................................................................ 24
      The Irish For No .................................................................................................................................................................. 25
      The ends of discourse ........................................................................................................................................................... 30
      Locality and the reservoir .................................................................................................................................................. 33
      The image of speech ........................................................................................................................................................... 35
      Ying-yang, I-Ching and politics ....................................................................................................................................... 37

  II  Aspects of textuality in The Irish For No .............................................................................................................................. 43
      The scene of writing ............................................................................................................................................................ 43
      The human spoor and the typing machine ............................................................................................................................ 47
      The webs of discourse .......................................................................................................................................................... 51
      The Smithfield labyrinth .................................................................................................................................................. 55

  III  Reversed dialectics in First Language ................................................................................................................................. 61
      The tower of Babel ............................................................................................................................................................ 61
      The Second Language? .................................................................................................................................................... 66
      Carson’s archi-writing ..................................................................................................................................................... 68
      Tak – yes .............................................................................................................................................................................. 72
      The Rhizomatic Underground ........................................................................................................................................ 75
      The answers and the contract ........................................................................................................................................... 80

Chapter Two – The three mazes: city, memory and history ........................................................................................................... 87

  I  City ..................................................................................................................................................................................... 89
      The Belfast flâneur ............................................................................................................................................................ 89
      The transient city ............................................................................................................................................................ 91
      Mapping out .................................................................................................................................................................... 94
      The rhizomatic map ........................................................................................................................................................ 97
      The urban neurosis ........................................................................................................................................................ 98
      Playing with the panopticon – Carson as psychogeographer ......................................................................................... 100
      The mouth of the poem ............................................................................................................................................... 105
      The poetics of loss and junk .......................................................................................................................................... 106
      The Belfast Ballad .................................................................................................................................................... 109
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>II Memory</td>
<td>113</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Obsession</td>
<td>114</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Proust's souvenir involontaire</td>
<td>116</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bergson's expansions</td>
<td>120</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Deleuze's boxes</td>
<td>124</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Phenomenological memory</td>
<td>125</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The aura and its geology</td>
<td>127</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The textile garden of memory</td>
<td>129</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>III History</td>
<td>133</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The breakdown of History</td>
<td>136</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Storyteller’s dissemi(nation)</td>
<td>145</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The War Correspondent from Belfast</td>
<td>149</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chapter Three – The limits of knowledge and the space of the poem</td>
<td>155</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I Revision of epistemology in For All We Know</td>
<td>157</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The subject of the book</td>
<td>157</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The architecture of the book</td>
<td>159</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Strangers, doppelgangers and identity</td>
<td>161</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Linguistic mediation</td>
<td>165</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Time</td>
<td>167</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Art of Fugue</td>
<td>169</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Signs and the limits of language</td>
<td>171</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Love</td>
<td>172</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Causality</td>
<td>174</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>II Approaching the subject of death in On The Night Watch and Until Before After</td>
<td>177</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The great shortening of the line</td>
<td>177</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>From in Behind</td>
<td>181</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The language of Being</td>
<td>187</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The death-poem</td>
<td>191</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Poetic dwelling</td>
<td>198</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Homecoming</td>
<td>204</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Radical alterity – Emmanuel Levinas</td>
<td>207</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Until Before After – the coda</td>
<td>210</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Conclusions</td>
<td>219</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bibliography</td>
<td>225</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>