

Inhalt

Jan Lazardzig, Hole Rößler Joseph Furtttenbach and the Transfer of Mechanical Knowledge. New Perspectives on Early Modern Theatre Cultures	271
Joseph Furtttenbach Florentine Festivals and Stage Machinery. Codex iconographicus 401 (Bavarian State Library)	313
Hole Rößler »For lack of a site, and also to save on expenses«. Knowledge of Stagecraft: Joseph Furtttenbach and the Limits of Cultural Translation	367
Sara Mamone The Uffizi Theatre. The Florentine Scene from Bernardo Buontalenti to Giulio and Alfonso Parigi	389
Giuseppe Adami Between Tradition and Innovation. Reconsidering Florentine Stage Machinery of the Seventeenth Century in the Light of the Furtttenbach Codex iconographicus 401	417
Simon Paulus The Engineer's Gaze. Some Remarks on Spatial and Technological Perception and Presentation in the Codex iconographicus 401 (The »Furtttenbach Manuscript«)	439
Matteo Valleriani Forms and Functions of Codification of Knowledge. An Example from the Work of Joseph Furtttenbach	457
Abstracts	471
Notes on Contributors	475