

Introduction	7	London Green Belt: A Model for Sustainable Development?	31
Sustainability: Many Concepts	9	From Idea to Landscape	33
Two Examples from the Global North	12	London's Green Belt Today	38
Space as a Resource	12	From Landscape to Global City Infrastructure	39
Spatial Expansion—An Automatic Urbanism?	15	Airports	39
100%—Towards a One Hundred Percent Urban World: Form and Practice	18	M25 Motorway	52
Urban Density as Welfare-Creating Mechanism	19	Radical Radial	52
Space as a Resource: from Problem to Practice, a Proposition	19	The Urbanization of the Green Belt	53
Hypothesis: Sustainability has a Form!	22	London's Dominance of the Green Belt	53
Vision: LIMITS!	23	Expanding Infrastructure into the Green Belt	62
London and Berlin—Two Cases	26	Mineral Extraction and Waste Disposal	63
Methodology: Sources and Data	27	Incrementation	63
Notes	27	Exclusive Enclaves	63
		The Enclosed London and the Green Belt: A Dialectic Relation	66
		Openness to Projection: Bringing the London Green Belt into the Twenty-First Century	66
		The London Green Belt: Conclusions	69
		Notes	71

Contained City West Berlin	75	From the Resource Space to LIMITS	151
West Berlin (1961–1989): A Citadel	77	The Potentials of LIMITS	154
Containment: A New Spatial Paradigm	84	The Limits of LIMITS	157
Hyper-Connected City	84	Note	157
Berlin Through Networks	86
Green and Dense City	109	Acknowledgements	158
City of Productive Scarcity	129	Imprint	159
The Contained Berlin: Conclusions	142
Outlook: Containment!	147
Notes	147		