
Contents

Foreword	9
Huang Chun-chieh and Jörn Rüsen
Introduction	11
I. Presentations
Huang Chun-chieh
1. Historical Discourses in Traditional Chinese Historical Writings: Historiography as Philosophy	25
Huang Chun-chieh
2. Historical Thinking as Humanistic Thinking in Traditional China . . .	41
Wong Young-tsu
3. Humanism in Traditional Chinese Historiography – With Special Reference to the Grand Historian Sima Qian	49
Hu Chang-Tze
4. On the Transformation of Historical Thinking in Modern China	63
II. Comments
Achim Mittag
5. Cultural Differences as an Inspirational Source of Historical Knowledge – Random Notes on Three Approaches to Chinese Comparative Historiography	89
Fritz-Heiner Mutschler
6. Ancient Historiographies Compared	103

Peter Burke

7. Two Traditions of Historiography	113
---	-----

Helwig Schmidt-Glintzer

8. Humanistic Tradition and the Concept of a "National History" in China	121
--	-----

Stefan Berger

9. National History and Humanism: Reflections on a Difficult Relationship	125
---	-----

Jörn Rüsen

10. Commenting on Chinese Historical Thinking – a Multifaceted Approach	135
---	-----

Ulrich Timme Kragh

11. Dogmas of Superficiality: The Episteme of Humanism in Writings by Taiwanese Historians Huang Chun-chieh, Wong Young-tsu, and Hu Chang-Tze	143
---	-----

III. Second Thoughts

Ng On-cho

12. Enshrining the Past in the Present: Moral Agency and Humanistic History	159
---	-----

Q. Edward Wang

13. The Great Divergence in Historiography – Reflections on Chinese and Western Historiographical Developments	171
--	-----

Susanne Weigelin-Schwiedrzik

14. Some Comments on the Difficulty of Engaging in Intercultural Dialogue	183
---	-----

IV. Responses

Huang Chun-chieh

15. Some Notes on Chinese Historical Thinking	195
---	-----

Wong Young-tsu

16. Historical Thinking East and West – Let the Twain Meet	203
--	-----

Hu Chang-Tze

17. Giving Modern Chinese Historical Thinking Back its Authenticity . . . 219

Huang Chun-chieh/Jörn Rüsen

18. A Final Remark 229

List of Contributors 231

Bibliography 235

Index 251