Contents

Translators’ Introduction 1

Oasis of Happiness: Thoughts toward an Ontology of Play {1957} 14

Play as Symbol of the World {1960} 33

Chapter One: Play as a Philosophical Problem 35
  1. Play as a Possible and Worthy Topic for Philosophy 35
  2. The World-Significance of Human Play 43
  3. Methodological Considerations 52
  4. The Position of the Human Being in the Centauresque Metaphysics of the West 61
  5. The World as Play? An Approach in the Appearance of the Playworld 70

Chapter Two: The Metaphysical Interpretation of Play 80
  6. The Non-Actual Character of Play 80
  7. Play and the Other Regions of Human Life. Plato’s Blending of Being and Nothing 88
  8. Plato’s Interpretation of Play by Way of the Mirror. His Critique of the Poets 97
  9. The Lens of the Disenchanted. Critique of the Platonic Model of the Mirror 106
  10. The Ontological Devaluation of Play at the Beginning of Metaphysics. The Problem of the Symbol 115

Chapter Three: The Interpretation of Play in Myth 125
  11. Basic Features of Mythical Cult-Play 125
  12. The Cultic Sense-Image and Its Veiled World-Reference. Association with Daemons 133
  13. Cosmic Status of the Symbolism of Play—Ancient Belief in Daemons. The Enchantment of Masks 142
  14. Sacred Technique, Cosmic Metaphor, Initiatory Enchantment. Transition to Cult-Play 151
Contents

15. Cult-Play as a Dissembling of the World-Relation.
   Play of the Gods and Play of the World 160

   The Play of the Gods Is Not Itself Cult-Play 169

Chapter Four: The Worldliness of Human Play 188
18. Polysemy of the Concept “Worldly” 188
19. The Worldliness of Play—In Contrast to the Metaphysical and Mythological Interpretation 197
20. Play as the Ecstase of the Human Being toward the World and as the Proof of the Shining Back of the World into the Being That Is Open to the World. The World as a Game without a Player 206

Play and Celebration (1975) 216

Additional Texts

- Child’s Play (1959) 227
- Play and Philosophy (1966) 229
- The World-Significance of Play (1973) 234
- Play and Cult (1972–1973?) 249

Fink’s Notes on Play

- The Philosophical-Pedagogical Problem of Play, 1954 253
- Sport Seminar on February 24, 1961 273
- Play and Sport (1962) 275
- Notes on “Play and Philosophy” (1966) 279
- Notes on “The World-Significance of Play” (1973) 283
Appendices

1. The Layout of the Volume and Description of the Texts 295
2. German Editors' Afterword 303
3. Bibliography of Fink's Works Available in English 321
4. Secondary Literature on Fink in English 323

Notes 327
Name Index 347