

Table of Contents

Acknowledgements .....	7
Abstract .....	9
Introduction .....	11
Chapter 1: LAVATER, PLATO, AND PLOTINUS
THE RELATION BETWEEN MENTAL BEAUTY AND PHYSICAL BEAUTY .....	25
1.1 Introduction .....	25
1.2 Lavater's Physiognomic Theory .....	27
1.3 The Platonic Origins of the Doctrine of Derived Beauty ..	36
1.4 The Neo-Platonic Doctrine of Derived Beauty .....	41
1.5 Conclusion .....	46
Chapter 2: SHAFTESBURY AND REID .....	49
2.1 Introduction .....	49
2.2 Shaftesbury on the Relations between Moral Beauty, Moral Virtue, and Physical Beauty .....	50
2.3 Reid on the Relation between Moral Beauty and Moral Virtue .....	65
2.4 Reid on the Relation between Mental Beauty and Physical Beauty .....	71
2.5 Conclusion .....	76
Chapter 3: HUTCHESON .....	79
3.1 Introduction .....	79
3.2 Hutcheson on the Relation between Moral Beauty and Moral Virtue .....	80
3.3 Hutcheson on the Relation between Mental Beauty and Physical Beauty .....	87
3.4 Conclusion .....	96
Chapter 4: HUME .....	99
4.1 Introduction .....	99
4.2 Hume on the Relation between Moral Beauty and Moral Virtue .....	101
4.3 Hume on the Relation between Mental Beauty and Physical Beauty .....	116
4.4 Conclusion .....	120

Chapter 5: KANT

	ON BEAUTY AS THE SYMBOL OF THE MORALLY GOOD AND ON THE MORAL AGENT AS THE IDEAL OF BEAUTY . . . . .	125
5.1	Introduction . . . . .	125
5.2	Hypotyposis: Presentation (i. e., Expression) of Concepts by Symbolisation and Schematisation (CJ § 59) . . . . .	127
5.2.1	Regulative and Constitutive Principles of Cognition . . . . .	129
5.2.2	Freedom and Purposiveness as Analogical Elements between Modes of Reflections in Judgements of Beauty and in Moral Judgements . . . . .	133
5.2.3	Differentiations of Kinds of Beauty and the Ideal of Beauty . . . . .	135
5.3	Conclusion: Symbolisation as Expression, or how the Ideal of Beauty expresses the Morally Good through the Human Figure . . . . .	151

Chapter 6: SCHILLER

	GRACE AND DIGNITY AS THE AESTHETIC EXPRESSIONS OF EXECUTED MORAL DUTY IN ACCORDANCE WITH INCLINATION AND CONTRARY TO INCLINATION, RESPECTIVELY . . . . .	155
6.1	Introduction . . . . .	155
6.2	Kant and Schiller on the Role of Sentiments or Inclinations for Moral Virtue . . . . .	156
6.3	Schiller on the Relation between Moral Beauty and Moral Virtue: the Analogy between Aesthetic Freedom and Moral Freedom . . . . .	169
6.3.1	Schiller's Theory of Beauty: Freedom in Appearance . . . . .	169
6.3.2	Schiller's Moral Theory: The Appearance of Moral Freedom as Grace and Dignity . . . . .	173
6.3.3	The Analogy between Aesthetic Freedom and Moral Freedom . . . . .	183
6.4	Schiller on the Relationship between Mental and Physical Beauty: Grace and Dignity as the Aesthetic Expression of Moral Character . . . . .	186
6.5	Conclusion . . . . .	200
	Conclusion . . . . .	203
	Bibliography . . . . .	209
	Index of Names . . . . .	225