

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction by Laurence J. Parker	xi
Chapter 1. "These People Are Suffering": Help versus Incarceration	1
Chapter 2. Tools for Understanding Drug Addiction and Black Mothers' Standpoint	13
Chapter 3. Origin of the Crack Ho': Mammies, Jezebels, Controlled Images, and Prosecution of Addiction	25
Chapter 4. "From Suga to Shit": The Drug Business and Destruction of Black Communities	45
Chapter 5. More About the Mothers, Research Practice, Black Motherhood and Addiction	67
Chapter 6. "I Had Help": Kinship, Drug Addictions, and Black Family Resilience	95
Chapter 7. "Wasn' No Junkie, I Was a Workin' Addict ... It's a Difference": Self-Definition of Black Mothers' Roles and Responsibilities	115
Chapter 8. Crack Baby Aftermath and Navigating Educational Institutions	139

Chapter 9. “I Was Just Cryin’ Out To God”: Recovery and the Spirituality of Struggle	165
Discussion: What the Mothers Made Me Think About	187
Contributor Bio—Dr. Laurence J. Parker	207
Index	209