

Contents

List of Illustrations — IX

Introduction — 1

- 1 Figuring Identity: Ruptures and Continuities from the Reinhardt Era to the Early Federal Republic (1905–1957) — 14
 - 1.1 From the Reinhardt Era to the Rise of the Anti-Semitic Hegemony — 19
 - 1.2 The Theatrical Ratification of Genocide — 43
 - 1.3 Redemptive Figurations: The Post-War Period to the End of the 1950s — 62
- 2 Staging Remembrance: Refigurations on the West German Stage (1960–1990) — 83
 - 2.1 The Transformation of Shylock into a Figure of Cultural Memory — 88
 - 2.2 Tactical Refigurations: Fritz Kortner, Peter Zadek, and George Tabori — 98
 - 2.3 The Diversification of the Shylock Figure: Holocaust Victims, Outsiders, and ‘Rich Jews’ — 122
- 3 Inheriting a Classic: Configurations of Merchant in the German Democratic Republic (1949–1990) — 137
 - 3.1 Shakespeare and the ‘Classical Heritage’ — 138
 - 3.2 Absent Shylocks — 145
 - 3.3 Fritz Bennewitz’s Merchants at Weimar (1976) and Leipzig (1988) — 150
 - 3.4 The Shylock Figure in the East-West Conflict — 157
- 4 After Remembrance? – Shylock in the Reunified Germany (1990–2010) — 162
 - 4.1 Against Identification: Peter Zadek’s 1988 Burgtheater Production — 165
 - 4.2 The “Shylock Syndrome”: Dietrich Schwanitz’s Close Reading of Anti-Semitism — 171

VIII — Contents

4.3 The Theatre of Remembrance: Imperatives, Denials, and Transferences — 175

4.4 The Politics of Identity — 190

5 “Forced Companionability”: Conclusion — 202

Works Cited — 207

1 Primary Texts and Critical Studies — 207

2 Reviews of Stage Productions of The Merchant of Venice — 223

3 Theatre Programmes and Theatre Websites — 227

Stage Productions of The Merchant of Venice in Germany and Austria (1933 – 2010) — 228

Index — 238