

Contents

Prologue	9
1 Introductory questions	11
1.1 The anthropological perspective and two hierarchies of time	11
1.2 Time in Ajdukiewicz's definition and in the zonal approach	17
1.3 Zones of time: from theory to history	28
1.4 Time and space. The ideal world and the material world	36
2 The zonality of time	43
2.1 The processual and qualitative aspects of time, the logarithmic law ...	43
2.2 A uniform musical scale of pitch, tempo and time	47
2.3 Natural zones of time in music	49
2.4 Movement in music and the role of impulses of sudden change	54
2.5 The question of racial and cultural factors conditioning musical time	59
3 The zone of note pitches	63
3.1 The zone of hearing and the zone of musical sounds	63
3.2 The zone of human voices	65
3.3 Note pitches in music and in language	69
3.4 The zone of musical sound	73
3.5 Perceived roughness	76
4 The zone of the psychological present	79
4.1 Upper regions, 'short times', units of movement, syllables and phonemes	85

4.2	Central regions, 'long times', basic metrical units	100
4.3	Lower regions, measures and phrases	118
4.4	Indian rhythm theory	130
4.5	Music and language as sound systems	137
4.6	Music as the transformation of human movement	154
5	The zone of works and performances	177
5.1	The range of the zone and a synthetic table	177
5.2	The zone of microworks	181
5.3	The central regions of the zone of works	182
5.4	The zone of medium and long works	184
5.5	The multiple levels of time and the segmentation of melody	189
6	The zone of ecological time	215
6.1	The cycles of ecological time	215
6.2	The temporal environment of Black Africa	218
6.3	Sacred time and secular time	219
6.4	The temporal environment of the Middle Ages	222
6.5	The temporal environment and music	228
7	The zone of individual and social life	231
7.1	The zone of the time of human ontological development	231
7.2	The temporality of the existential level in psychology	237
7.3	The psychology of musical development	239
7.4	The course of life and phases in creative work	242
7.5	Age groups as a measure of time	246
7.6	The period of human life and musical folklore	250
7.7	'Structural time' and tradition	253

7.8 Shallow history, the example of Finnish folk music	255
7.9 On happiness in life	258
8 The zone of historical time and worldview	259
8.1 The tempo of historical changes and the logarithmic scale	259
8.2 The zonal character of historical time	260
8.3 The 'circling of times'	266
8.4 Historical time in the Christian Middle Ages	267
8.5 The Darwinian revolution in the understanding of history	270
9 Time and space	273
9.1 Le Corbusier's modulator and music	273
9.2 The modulator and the twelve-degree scale	278
9.3 The sense of the discretisation of space in the modulator	280
9.4 Neutral human size	283
9.5 Humans in the scale of time and space	289
9.6 Time and space and the difficulties with classifying the arts	294
9.7 Spatial aspects in music	296
10 Levels of time and levels of existence	299
10.1 Levels of knowledge	299
10.2 Anthropology of art	311
10.3 Ethnochoreology	314
10.3.1 Text	314
10.3.2 Process	315
10.3.3 Context	316
10.4 An example of a musical form, an instrument and a work of art	320
10.4.1 The atemporal, nominal level	323
10.4.2 The prototemporal, ordinal level	329

10.4.3 The eotemporal, intervallic level	335
10.4.4 The biotemporal level; the present, past and future	340
10.4.5 The level of artistic events, participation	348
10.4.6 The level of the natural and cultural environments	356
10.4.7 The level of individual and communal life	361
10.4.8 The level of our vision of the world, time beyond time	365
 Epilogue	 371
 List of examples	 373
 Bibliography	 379
 Index	 399