

Contents

| | |
|--|-----------|
| EDITORIAL | 5 |
| GUIDE TO WORKBOOK 1 | 6 |
| 1. INTRODUCTION | |
| 1.1. Introduction to science and policy | 10 |
| 1.1.1. The three dimensions of the political system | 10 |
| 1.2. From government to governance | 12 |
| 1.3. The role of science in participatory policymaking and governance | 14 |
| 1.3.1. The science-policy boundary: attributes for successful knowledge transfer | 16 |
| 1.3.2. Involvement in the research process | 18 |
| 1.4. Navigating the policy cycle | 19 |
| 1.4.1. The policy cycle in more detail | 20 |
| 2. THEORY | |
| 2.1. Science and scientists in policymaking | 24 |
| 2.1.1. The role of scientists in policymaking | 24 |
| 2.1.2. What types of interaction can scientists engage in? | 30 |
| 2.1.3. Types of scientific knowledge in the science-policy process | 32 |
| 2.1.4. Key principles for giving policy advice | 33 |
| 2.1.5. Understanding the policy environment | 36 |
| 2.2. How can scientists and policymakers work together? | 38 |
| 3. COMMENT | |
| 3.1. Environmental governance | 42 |
| 4. TOOLS | |
| 4.1. Interviews | 48 |
| 4.1.1. Quantitative interviews | 48 |
| 4.1.2. Qualitative interviews | 51 |
| 4.2. Communicating policy advice | 54 |
| 4.3. Policy brief | 56 |
| 4.4. Fact sheet | 58 |
| 5. EXAMPLES | |
| 5.1. The Swiss Biodiversity Action Plan | 62 |
| 5.2. Regulation of new plant breeding techniques | 65 |
| 5.3. Policymaking in Swiss agriculture | 68 |
| REFERENCES | 71 |
| INDEX | 75 |