

Table of Contents

Heinrich Assel

Introduction

Luther Renaissance and Dialectical Theology – A tour d’horizon 1906 –
1935 — 1

Part I: Anticipations

Hartwig Wiedebach

Karl Barth on Kant’s “Biblical Theology” A Reading with Hermann Cohen — 19

Jacqueline Mariña

The Religious A Priori in Otto and its Kantian Origins — 39

Christine Svinth-Væрге Pøder

Luther’s Lectures on Romans in the Work of Karl Holl, Rudolf Hermann, and Karl Barth — 57

Part II: Parallel Movements

Henning Theißen

Barth’s Explicit Reception of Luther

An Auxiliary Tool for the Study of Karl Barth — 77

Claire E. Sufrin

Martin Buber between Revelation and Scripture — 93

Volker Leppin

Luther and Mysticism

The Case of the Seebergs and Vogelsang — 109

VIII — Table of Contents

David W. Congdon

Desperatio Fiducialis

Barth and Bultmann on the Anthropological Significance of Revelation — 125

Part III: Disruption

Hent de Vries

Theologia paradoxa, theologia crucis

Heidegger's Luther — 149

Bruce L. McCormack

The Man who became God or the God who became Man?

The Concept of Revelation in the Theologies of Karl Barth and Friedrich
Gogarten — 171

Heinrich Assel

Trinity, Incarnation, Political Theology

Gogarten's Luther between Luther Renaissance and Rudolf
Bultmann — 193

Christian Neddens

Werner Elert and Hans Joachim Iwand – Political Theology and Theology of the Cross — 213

Appendix

Rudolf Bultmanns unpublizierter Kommentar (1928)
zu Friedrich Gogartens „Ich glaube an den dreieinigen Gott“ (1926).
Ediert von Heinrich Assel — 233

Contributors — 261

Index of Names — 263