Contents

Preface — IX

I Introduction — 1
1 Premise: The nominalist revolution — 1
2 The argument — 4
3 Renaissance resonances — 8
4 Methodological and analytic procedures — 14
5 Chapter summaries — 16

II Petrarch and the Triumph of Exile — 20
1 Exilic mutations — 20
2 Petrarch’s manifold exiles — 22
3 Ulysses, curiosity, and the heroism of exile — 25
4 Transcendental homelessness — 32
5 The subject’s existential exile in the other — 37
6 The homecoming of exile — 43

III Rerum vulgarium fragmenta: Petrarch’s Labyrinthine Mirror — 46
1 The ambivalence of love — 46
2 Petrarch in the labyrinth — 48
3 The demonic mirror of love — 59
4 Crucified in the mirror of love — 63
5 Petrarch’s early modernity — 79

IV Shakespeare’s “Nihilism” — 82
1 The question of nothingness — 82
2 Nominalism and nothingness — 86
3 The nothingness of language — 96
4 Reflection and nothingness — 106
5 From the Middle Ages to the Renaissance — 113
6 The interest in nothingness — 118
7 The ghost of existence, death, and nothingness — 125
8 Anxiety, desire, and nothingness — 130
9 Desire, representation, and nothingness — 135
10 Sexuality, gender, birth, and nothingness — 142
11 The renaissance and the poetics of nothingness — 149
VIII — Contents

V Early Modernity and the Foil of Contrarieties — 157
1 Medieval persistence — 157
2 The lack of steadfastness — 159
3 Son diviso et sparso — 165

VI Literature — 171

Index — 184