

CONTENTS

Introduction		ix
About the Concept of the “Dangerous Individual” in 19th-Century Legal Psychiatry	Michel Foucault	1
Comments	V. M. Rakoff	19
Comments	J. Guédon	22
The Theoretical Relationship Between Law and Psychiatry		30
	David N. Weisstub
Comments	J. Goldstein	47
Comments	A. Kontos	52
Dangerous People	Nigel Walker	56
Comments	C. Greenland	69
Comments	R. Price	74
Comments	R. O. Jones	82
Law and Mental Disorder: A Critique of the Law Reform Commission of Canada	Hans W. Mohr	85
Comments	R. E. Turner	97
Comments	W. J. Curran	100
Canadian Native Peoples and Psychiatric Justice	J. D. Atcheson	103
Psychiatry and the Adversary System of Justice		115
	Mr. Justice Edson Haines
Comments	A. Maloney	130
Comments	M. Teplitsky and D. N. Weisstub	136

The Role of Psychiatry in the Sentencing Process	Alan Dershowitz	141
Comments	F. R. Chalke	156
Comparative Analysis of Mental Health Legislation in Forty-Three Countries: A Discussion of Historical Trends
	W. J. Curran and T. W. Harding	158
Comments	G. Sharpe	172

The contents of this book were presented at the Clarke Institute
Memorial Lecture, 1977