2.4 Alternative Description	12
2.5 Organization Charts in Practice	14
3. Control	16
3.1 Structure	16
3.2 Control Sets	17
3.3 Partial Order	17
*3.4 Further Remarks	19
4. Rank	21
4.1 Motivation	21
4.2 Simple Ordering	22
4.3 Counting Supervisory Relationships	24
4.4 Meaning of Rank	29
4.5 Rank and Precedence	30
Problems	31

5.	Distance	33
	5.1 Organization Charts as Graphs	33
	5.2 Communication Networks	33
	5.3 Locating the President	37
	*5.4 Enumeration	40
II. PERFECT MANAGEMENT
6.	Numbers of Positions	41
	6.1 Span of Control	41
	6.2 Quantification of Task	43
	6.3 Constant Span of Control	44
	6.4 Disaggregation of Task	48
	6.5 Full-Time Assignments	51
	6.6 Supervisory Load and Effort	55
	6.7 Allocation of Managers in the Short Run	56
	6.8 Average Span of Control and Output	57
	6.9 Spans of Control Decreasing with Rank	59
7.	Estimation	63
	7.1 From M and Q	63
	7.2 From Lists of Positions by Rank	64
	7.3 Other Estimates	67
8.	Assignment	71
	8.1 The Problem of Implementation	71
	8.2 Integer Assignments	72
	8.3 Minimizing Ranks	73
	8.4 Flexible or Rigid Department Lines	77
	8.5 Leanness of Organizations	78
	*8.6 Support Structure	81
	Problems	83

9.	Regular Organization	85
	9.1 Construction	85
	9.2 Properties	86
	9.3 Average Rank	87
	*9.4 Average Distance	88
10.	Costs	90
	10.1 Salary Schedules	90
	10.2 Average Wage and Unit Labor Cost	92
	10.3 Cost Minimizing Organizational Designs	94
	10.4 Job Allocation in the Short Run	96
	10.5 Minimizing Unit Labor Costs	98
	10.6 Cost and Scale for Regular Organizations	101
	10.7 Cost and Scale for Nonregular Organizations	104
III. PRODUCTIVITY AND STRUCTURE
11.	Substitution of Management and Operative Inputs:
	Welfare Agency	109
	11.1 A Queuing Model	109
	11.2 Analysis	112
	11.3 Discussion	115
	11.4 Generalization	116
12.	Information Costs: Research Teams	122
	12.1 Model	124
	12.2 Production Function	126
	12.3 Checking	128
13.	Loss of Information in Simple Organizations	130
	13.1 Setting Targets	130
	13.2 Budgeting with Full Information	134
	13.3 Incomplete Information	139
14.	Loss of Information and Control in Multi-Level Organizations	143
	14.1 Loss of Information	143
	14.2 Loss of Control	145

15.	Uses of Production Functions: Simple Organizations	148
	15.1 Attainable Output	148
	15.2 Labor Requirements	149
	15.3 Supervisory Input	150
	15.4 Minimizing the Cost of Given Output	151
	15.5 Increasing Returns to Scale	153
16.	Uses of Production Functions: Multi-Level Organizations	155
	16.1 A Production Function for Management	155
	16.2 Allocation of Inputs	159
	16.3 Short Run	160
	16.4 Medium Run: Optimal Spans of Control	163
	16.5 Medium Run: Cost Functions	165
	16.6 Long Run: Optimal Number of Ranks	166
	16.7 Long Run: Cost Functions	167
IV. ADVANTAGE AND MOTIVATION
17.	Organizations vs. Individuals	170
	17.1 Organization of Individual Effort	171
	17.2 Larger Output: Simple Organization	173
	17.3 Advantage of Simple Organization	177
	17.4 Utilizing Better Qualified Personnel	180
18.	Management Motivation: Principal and Agent	182
	18.1 Introduction	182
	18.2 Managers as Principals	183
	18.3 Linear Homogeneous Production Function	186
	18.4 Managers as Agents	189
	18.5 Increasing Returns to Scale	192
19.	The Economics of Hierarchy	196
	19.1 Management by Delegation	196
	19.2 Optimization	198
	19.3 Discussion: Emerging Wage Structure	200
	19.4 Loss of Control	201

19.5 Team Work at the Top	204
19.6 Long Run	205
19.7 Organizational Modes of an Industry	209
20. Alternatives to Hierarchy: Partnerships	211
20.1 Partnership Defined	211
20.2 Equal Sharing and Full Time Work	212
20.3 Advantage of Partnership: Fixed Shares	216
20.4 Proportional Rewards	221

CONCLUSION

Appendix A. Deriving Supervisory Relationships from Control	227
Appendix B. Average Span of Control and More Graph Theory	228
Appendix C. Proof of Lemma for Section 6.9	230
