LOGISTICS IN MANUFACTURING
An IFS Executive Briefing

Edited by John Mortimer

IFS Publications, UK
Springer-Verlag
Berlin • Heidelberg • New York • Tokyo
1988
Contents

Foreword
Improving performance through logistics
Global logistics for world markets
M. Christopher, Cranfield School of Management, UK
Logistically friendly product portfolios
H. Mather, Hal Mather Inc, USA

Strategic planning
Factors which affect the ‘ideal’ European logistics strategy
T.J. Larder and M.G. Tong, PA Consulting Group, UK
Logistics in the retail industry
N.R. Bailie, ICL, UK
Initial planning and methods for logistical systems
R. Jüinemann and B. Filz, Fraunhofer-Institut für Transporttechnik und Warenverteilung, German Federal Republic
Factory data collection and communication for in-plant logistics
K. Roschmann, Fachhochschule Konstanz, German Federal Republic
International logistics information systems
F. Khan and C. Akerma'n, GEISCO Ltd, UK

Computers in decision making
CIM and EDI within IBM
B. Bradley, IBM Europe, France
Effective software development in logistics – results of an empirical study and industrial applications
S. Schmidt, BMW AG, German Federal Republic
Improving international logistics performance
A. Slater, Arthur Young Management Consultants, UK
Load orientated production control – a contribution to the logistics-orientated factory
H-P Wiendahl, Institut für Fabrikanlagen der Universität Hannover, German Federal Republic

JIT and logistics
Value added services and Just-in-Time manufacturing
R. Manfredi and D. Terzano, Intesa S.p.A., Italy
The effects on costs and logistics by Just-in-Time manufacturing
G. Bauer and M. Schumann, Avon Cosmetics GmbH, German Federal Republic

Throughput time as a critical factor
T. J. Theunissen, Philips International BV, The Netherlands

Off-shore sourcing in a just-in-time environment
E. J. Feeley and V. F. Fernandes, Booz Allen & Hamilton Inc, USA

Synchronised manufacturing – the route to zero inventory and maximum profitability
I. B. Wilson, Handley-Walker Co Ltd, UK

Purchasing and supply
Exploiting the industrial supply chain
J. Houlihan, Booz Allen & Hamilton International (UK), UK

Customer and vendor networking/managing demand through JIT partnerships
S. N. Burns and F. J. Seggelink, 3M Company, USA

Initial purchasing process quality: its impact on the logistics chain
D. Coppock, Philips Electronics, UK

Logistics for a multi-national chemical company
Anton P. M. Scholten, Dow Chemical, Europe SA, Switzerland

Distribution
BMW logistics: A step into the future
H-U Pretzsch, BMW AG, German Federal Republic

Modelling international and national distribution and production
D. O’Sullivan, PE Consulting Services Ltd, UK

The changing role of third party distribution services
B. N. McKibbin, Tibbett & Britten Group Plc, UK

The control and measurement of logistics performance
G. Spijkerman, DAF Trucks, The Netherlands

Logistics now and in the future – A view from the brewing industry
B. R. Scholey, Courage Brewing Ltd, UK

New concepts of physical distribution in the steel industry
H. C. Pfohl, Technical University of Darmstadt, German Federal Republic

The future for logistics
Future systems developments in logistics
R. H. Jewitt, A. T. Kearney Ltd, UK

A look at the future for logistics management
P. T. Nelson, College of Charleston, USA

Life after logistics
A. R. Morcom, Knight Wendling Ltd, UK

The new concepts and emerging view of logistics
W. Finkelstein, FAI, USA

Authors’ names and addresses

Source of material