
Contents

Foreword, by Ernst W. Korngold 9

Acknowledgments 11

Introduction 15

The Early Years: 1897–1913

ONE. “A Genius!”—Gustav Mahler 21

TWO. The Prodigy Reveals Himself 35

THREE. Fame and Honors 48

FOUR. The Prodigy Goes on Tour 62

FIVE. “We Will Have to Burn Our Books on Harmony”
—Edward Dent 76

A Born Opera Composer: 1913–1918

SIX. “He Is a Young Eagle”—Jean Sibelius 97

SEVEN. Operatic Triumphs 109

EIGHT. The Prodigy Falls in Love 117

The "New Music" and the Aftermath of War: 1919–1923

- NINE. "One of the Most Important and Successful Composers of Our Time"—Max Kalbeck 129
- TEN. "He Is the Greatest Hope of German Music"—Giacomo Puccini 143
- ELEVEN. A New Order in Music—Schoenberg and Serialism 156

The New Dark Age—Hitler's Rise to Power: 1924–1933

- TWELVE. "Mama, We Are Playing at Being Married, a Whole Life Long!" 171
- THIRTEEN. Korngold versus Křenek 186
- FOURTEEN. The Youngest Music Professor in the World 201
- FIFTEEN. The Search for a New Opera 216

From Vienna to Hollywood: 1934–1944

- SIXTEEN. Lights! Action! Korngold! 231
- SEVENTEEN. Operas Without Singing 245
- EIGHTEEN. Escape from Hitler—Exile in Hollywood 262
- NINETEEN. The Golden Age of Film Music 280
- TWENTY. New Triumphs—Hollywood and Broadway 300

The Return to Absolute Music: 1944–1955

- TWENTY-ONE. Farewell to Films 317
- TWENTY-TWO. Return to Europe 333
- TWENTY-THREE. Faith in Music 351
- TWENTY-FOUR. Afterword—The Korngold Renaissance 367

Notes to Chapters One Through Twenty-three 373

The Complete Works of Erich Wolfgang Korngold 396

Selected Bibliography 407

Discography: 1914–1996 415

Index 437