

Contents

Preface to the German Edition	page xi
Preface to the English Edition	xv
I Thinking about Environmental History	I
1. Blinders and Dead Ends in Environmental History	I
2. The Sameness of Vicious Circles and the Complex Ways of Escaping Them	6
3. In the Depth of Time, and the Mysterious Regenerative Power of the Nature Idea	15
4. Trees or Sheep? The Problem of Value Judgments in Environmental History	20
5. Ecology as Historical Explanation: From the Collapse of Mayan Culture to the Great Irish Famine	27
6. Terra Incognita: Environmental History as Secret History or the History of the Obvious?	32
2 The Ecology of Subsistence and Tacit Knowledge: Primeval Symbioses of Humans and Nature	36
1. In the Beginning Was Fire: Global Slash-and-Burn Agriculture and Pyromania in Environmental History	41
2. Humans and Animals: Hunting and Domestication	45
3. Gardens and Fruit Trees	55
4. Farmers and Herders	62
5. The “Tragedy of the Commons” and the Plaggen Plague: Was Premodern Agriculture “Unconscious Plunder”?	71
6. Mother Earth and the Father in Heaven: On the Ecology of Religion	77
3 Water, Forests, and Power	86
1. Hydraulic Engineering, Power, and Ecological Chain Reactions	87
2. Egypt and Mesopotamia: An Archetypal Contrast	93
3. The Irrigated Terrace: A Socioecological Cell Culture	97

4.	China as a Model and a Terrifying Vision	103
5.	Water Civilizations within Constrained Spaces: Venice and the Netherlands	117
6.	Malaria, Irrigation, Deforestation: Endemic Disease as Nature's Avenger and the Protector of Ecological Reserves	127
7.	Deforestation and "Ecological Suicide" in the Mediterranean Region: A Fictitious Problem? Erosion in Harmony with Nature and Misleading Historicization	131
8.	Forest and Power in Europe: From the Forest-Clearance Movement to the Era of Forest Regulations	136
9.	Focal Points of an Early Consciousness of Crisis: Cities and Mining	142
4	Colonialism as a Watershed in Environmental History	152
1.	The Mongol Empire and the "Microbial Unification of the World"	154
2.	Ecological Dynamics in Overseas Colonialization	157
3.	The Birth of the Global Perspective: Colonial and Insular Origins of Modern Environmental Awareness	164
4.	Colonial and Postcolonial Turning Points in India's Environmental History	169
5.	Yankee and Mushik Ecology	177
6.	The Question of European Exceptionalism in Environmental History: The Effect of Colonialism on the Colonial Powers	184
5	At the Limits of Nature	195
1.	Toward the Last Reserves	195
2.	"Wo Mistus, da Christus" (Where there is dung, there is Christ): From the Fallow to the "Cult of Dung" and the Politicization of Agriculture	205
3.	Alarm over Wood Scarcity, the Afforestation Movement, and the Rise of an Ecological Forest Apologetics	212
4.	"Sweet, Holy Nature": The Ambiguous Development of the Modern Religion of Nature	221
5.	Nature and Nation: Making Concrete the Nature in Need of Protection	226
6.	The First Industrial Environmental Crisis and the Genesis of Basic Patterns of Modern Crisis Management	239
6	In the Labyrinth of Globalization	250
1.	The Deepest Rupture in the History of the Environment: The Failed Americanization of the World	250
2.	Blood and Soil: Self-Sufficiency Gone Mad	260
3.	Substrata of Environmental Concerns: The Nuclear Apocalypse and Cancer Fears	265
4.	Scientific, Spiritual, and Economic Origins of the Environmental Movement	272

5. Nepal, Bhutan, and Other Summit Perspectives: Environmental Problems in Tourism, Development Aid, and Space Flight	280
6. The Problems of Power and Uncertainty in Environmental Policy	294
Epilogue: How to Argue with Environmental History in Politics	304
Notes	331
Index	409