

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	xiii
Conventions	xv
INTRODUCTION	1
PART I: MEDIATED SPIRIT POSSESSION
Chapter 1: Introductory remarks	15
Chapter 2: Spirit possession and ecstasy
2.1 Theoretical aspects of spirit possession and ecstasy
2.1.1 Definitions of spirit possession, ecstasy and trance	19
2.1.2 Solicited versus unsolicited spirit possession and ecstasy	22
2.1.3 Central versus peripheral spirit possession	24
2.1.4 Mediated spirit possession	26
2.1.5 Spirit possession, ecstasy and Shamanism	28
2.2 Spirit possession and ecstasy in Japan
2.2.1 Japanese deities, spirits and souls	30
2.2.2 Japanese terminology	32
2.2.3 Spirit possession in Japan	35
2.2.4 Ecstasy in Japan	39
2.2.5 Mediated spirit possession in Japan	41
Chapter 3: Mediated spirit possession in Japanese past and present
3.1 Mediated spirit possession in Japan's mythical past
3.1.1 Ame no Uzume's dance and the chinkonsai	47
3.1.2 The spirit possession of Okinaga Tarashi Hime	51
3.1.3 The oracles of Hachiman	55
3.2 Mediated spirit possession in Japanese folk religions
3.2.1 The abishahô	60
3.2.2 Shugendô and its yorigitô	64
3.2.3 Ontakekyô's oza	74
3.2.4 The oracles at Mount Hayama as a local example	77

Chapter 4: Mediated spirit possession and Japanese new religions

4.1 New religions in Japan
4.1.1 Research on new religions in Japan	86
4.1.2 History of new religions in Japan	87
4.1.3 Characteristics of new religions in Japan	91
4.2 Spirit possession and ecstasy in Japanese new religions
4.2.1 New religions and Shugendō	98
4.2.2 Spirit possession and the founders of new religions	100
4.2.3 Spiritualism in Japan	104
4.2.4 Recent resurgence in spirit possession and related phenomena	108
4.3 Mediated spirit possession in Japanese new religions	112
4.4 Chinkon kishin
4.4.1 Terminology
4.4.1.1 Chinkon kishin	117
4.4.1.2 Saniwa	119
4.4.1.3 Kannushi	121
4.4.1.4 Changing terminology	122
4.4.2 Introduction to chinkon kishin 's theory and practice	124
4.4.3 Significance of chinkon kishin within Japanese religious history	128

Chapter 5: Conclusion 132

PART II: DEVELOPMENT OF CHINKON KISHIN

Chapter 1: Introductory remarks 135

Chapter 2: Honda Chikaatsu's and Nagasawa Katsutate's chinkon and kishin

2.1 Honda Chikaatsu
2.1.1 Primary and secondary sources	137
2.1.2 Honda's life and work	139
2.1.3 Honda's Spirit Studies	147
2.1.4 Honda's chinkon and kishin	152
2.1.5 Honda's teachers Aizawa Seishisai and Hirata Atsutane	165

2.2	Honda's explanation of chinkon's and kishin's history	170
2.3	Nagasawa Katsutate
2.3.1	Primary and secondary sources	181
2.3.2	Nagasawa's life and work	184
2.3.3	Nagasawa's chinkon and kishin	187
2.4	Chinkon kishin's lines of transmission	195

Chapter 3: Chinkon kishin in Ômoto

3.1	Ômoto
3.1.1	Primary and secondary sources	200
3.1.2	Deguchi Nao and Deguchi Onisaburô	204
3.1.3	Ômoto's history, doctrines and activities	209
3.2	History of chinkon kishin in Ômoto
3.2.1	The initial phase, 1898 - 1908	218
3.2.2	The climax, 1908 - 1921	224
3.2.3	The abolition, 1919 - early 1930s	231
3.2.4	Chinkon kishin today	239
3.3	Performance of chinkon kishin	242

Chapter 4: Later developments of chinkon kishin

4.1	Laying on of hands
4.1.1	Ômoto's miteshiro otoritsugi	261
4.1.2	Seikai Kyûseikyô's jôrei and Mahikari's okiyome	267
4.2	Asano Wasaburô's Spiritual Studies
4.2.1	Asano Wasaburô and Ômoto	275
4.2.2	Shinrei Kagaku Kenkyûkai, Nihon Shinrei Kagaku Kyôkai and seishin tôitsu	281
4.3	Chinkon kishin in Tomokiyo's Shindô Tenkôkyo
4.3.1	Tomokiyo Yoshisane and Shindô Tenkôkyo	286
4.3.2	Shindô Tenkôkyo's chinkon kishin	295
4.4	Shinsôkan in Taniguchi's Seichô no Ie
4.4.1	Taniguchi Masaharu and Seichô no Ie	301
4.4.2	Seichô no Ie's shinsôkan	305
4.5	Chinkon kishin in Nakano's Ananaikyô
4.5.1	Nakano Yonosuke and Ananaikyô	309
4.5.2	Ananaikyô's chinkon kishin	317

Chapter 5: Conclusion 325

PART III: CHINKON KISHIN IN TAISHÔ ERA ÔMOTO

Chapter 1: Introductory remarks 327

Chapter 2: Chinkon, kishin and spirit possession

- 2.1 Terms and definitions
 - 2.1.1 Chinkon, kishin and chinkon kishin 330
 - 2.1.2 Shinkanhō, jikanhō and takanhō 334
 - 2.1.3 The possessing entities 336
- 2.2 Spirit possession, kamigakari and trance
 - 2.2.1 Different levels of spirit possession 340
 - 2.2.2 Kamigakari and spirit possession 344
 - 2.2.3 States of trance during chinkon kishin 347
- 2.3 Changing attitudes towards spirit possession 350

Chapter 3: Chinkon kishin's aims and functions

- 3.1 Chinkon kishin's functions in Ômoto
 - 3.1.1 Acquisition of knowledge 354
 - 3.1.2 Chinkon kishin as a means of healing 358
 - 3.1.3 Personal experience of spirit possession and trance 361
 - 3.1.4 Moral implications of Ômoto's chinkon kishin 364
- 3.2 Chinkon kishin and Ômoto's millenarian beliefs
 - 3.2.1 Millenarian ideas in Ômoto 368
 - 3.2.2 Divine help in times of national crisis 370
 - 3.2.3 After prophecy had failed 376
- 3.3 Changing functions of chinkon kishin 380

Chapter 4: The saniwa, chinkon kishin's mediator
4.1 Functions of the saniwa
4.1.1 Calling the deity or spirit	384
4.1.2 Dialogue with the deity or spirit	387
4.1.3 Returning the deity or spirit	391
4.2 The saniwa 's qualifications and legitimation
4.2.1 Prerequisites for a saniwa	394
4.2.2 Patterns of legitimation related to chinkon kishin	396
4.2.3 Legitimation of the saniwa	399
4.3 Significance of the saniwa	402
Chapter 5: Conclusion	405
CONCLUSION: MEDIATED SPIRIT POSSESSION IN JAPANESE NEW RELIGIONS	407
References	415
Glossary and Index	459