

CONTENTS OF VOLUME SECOND.

BOOK II.

CHAPTER X.

THE CONFEDERATES.

Different Classes of Malecontents. — Petition prepared. — Discussion as to receiving it. — Speech of Orange. — Confederates enter Brussels. — Present the Petition. — Its Purport. — Answer of Margaret. — Banquet at Culemborg House. — The Gueux. — Symbols and Devices. — The People emboldened. Page 1—8.

CHAPTER XI.

FREEDOM OF WORSHIP.

Brederode at Antwerp. — Mission of Bergen and Montigny. — The "Moderation." — Singular Fraud. — Sects of the Reformers. — Field-Preaching. — Attended by Great Multitudes. — Alarm at Antwerp. — Orange sent there. — He restores Quiet. — Activity of the Regent. — Her Anxiety. — Dilatory Course of Philip. — His Dissimulation. — Meeting at St. Trond. — Moderate Party disgusted. — Deputation to Brussels. — Boldness of the Confederates. — Military Preparations. — Royal Council at Madrid. — It advises Concessions. — Philip consents. — His Insincerity. — Character of Pius V. — He urges an Extermination of Heretics. — Philip's Perfidy. — His Concessions distrusted. Page 9—23.

CHAPTER XII.

THE ICONOCLASTS.

Progress of the Reformers. — Violence of the Preachers. — Outbreak of the Iconoclasts. — Scandalous Proceedings at Antwerp. — The Cathedral sacked. — Timidity of the Citizens. — Outrages throughout the Land. — Extent of the Devastation. — Consternation at Brussels. — The Capital in Peril. — Demand for Freedom of Worship. — Margaret refuses to grant it. — She prepares to quit Brussels. — Is compelled to remain. — Terms made with the Confederates. — The Disorders suppressed. — Compact with the Reformers. — The Confederates lose their Influence. — Margaret changes her Course. — Seeks the Advice of Viglius. — Denounces her late Advisers. — Indifference of Orange and Hoorne. — Different Feelings of Egmont. — Phillip informed of the Disturbances. — View taken in the Royal Council. — Secret Intelligence of Orange. — Intercepted Letter of Alva. — Conference at Dendermonde. — Egmont prevents a Decision. — Charges the Regent with Perfidy. — Rumors of Phillip's Designs. — Preparations for Resistance. — Appeal to the German Protestants. — Orange a Lutheran at Heart. Page 23—45.

CHAPTER XIII.

THE REGENT'S AUTHORITY REESTABLISHED.

The Party of Reform divided. — Margaret profits by their Dissensions. — Publishes a New Edict. — Levies Troops. — Resistance of Valenciennes. — New Petition of the Confederates. — Margaret's Haughty Reply. — The Confederates take up Arms. — Troops sent against them. — The Insurgents defeated. — Tumult in Antwerp. — Appeased by Orange. — Siege of Valenciennes. — It refuses to capitulate. — Its Bombardment. — Preparations for Assault. — Unconditional Surrender. — The Insurrection quelled. Page 45—55.

CHAPTER XIV.

TRANQUILLITY RESTORED.

Oath of Implicit Obedience. — Orange requested to subscribe. — He refuses. — His Hazardous Position. — Attempt to persuade him. — Interview with Egmont. — Difference of their Characters. — Their Affection for each other. — William quits the Netherlands. — Resides at Dillemburg. — Joined by many of the Nobles. — Hoorne takes the Oath. —

Egmont's Loyalty. — Submission of Antwerp. — Margaret visits it. — Cruel Edict published. — Revoked by the king. — Embassy from the German Princes. — Death of Brederode. — His Adherents scattered. — Resistance subdued in Holland. — Severity of the Government. — Alarm caused by Alva's Appointment. — Margaret disgusted. — Apparent Order in the Country. — Dangerous Elements at Work. Page 56—68.

BOOK III.

CHAPTER I.

ALVA SENT TO THE NETHERLANDS.

The King's Intended Visit. — His Sincerity distrusted. — Discussion in the Royal Council. — Two Courses proposed. — The King resolves to send Alva. — Proclaims his Purpose to follow. — Alva receives his Instructions. — Sails for Italy. — Composition of his Army. — Order of March. — Passage of the Alps. — Perilous Route. — Admirable Discipline. — Arrival at Thionville. — Entry into Brussels. — Interview with the Regent. — Alva's Commission. — Extent of his Powers. — Mortification of Margaret. — Her Remonstrances fruitless. — Alva's Reputation. — Apprehension of the People. — Gloom of Brussels. — Snare prepared for the Nobles. — Egmont and Hoorne arrested. — Sent to the Castle of Ghent. — Sensation in the Country. — Margaret determines to retire. — Satisfaction at Madrid. — Remark of Granvelle. Page 69—89.

CHAPTER II.

CRUEL POLICY OF ALVA.

Order in the Netherlands. — Emigration prohibited. — The Council of Blood. — Its Members. — Method of Proceeding. — Enormous Powers. — Illegal Character. — Alva in need of Money. — Financial Expedients. — Summons sent to Orange. — His Son removed to Spain. — Civil War in France. — Catherine de Medicis. — Advice of Philip and Alva. — The Huguenots defeated. — Humiliating Position of Margaret. — Her Resignation accepted. — Last Request to Philip. — She takes leave of the People. — Their Regret. — She retires to Italy. — Her Political Career. — Difficulties of her Position. Page 89—109.

CHAPTER III.

REIGN OF TERROR.

Decree of the Inquisition. — Enlarged Powers of Alva. — Pursuit of Suspected Parties. — Numerous Arrests. — Alva's Merciless Spirit. — Unrelenting Persecution. — Fortitude of the Victims. — Universal Terror. — Banishment and Confiscation. — General Distress. — Vargas and Hessels. — The "Wild Gueux." — Remonstrances of Maximilian. — Philip's Stern Reply. — The People appeal to Orange. — He raises Troops. — Publishes a "Justification." — Plan of Invasion. — Pecuniary Difficulties. — Defeat of Hoogstraten and Cocqueville. — Count Louis at Heyligerlee. — Attacked by Aremberg. — The Patriots victorious. — Indignation of Alva. — He prepares to take the Field. — Displays his Vindictive Feelings. — Tragic Scenes at Brussels. Page 104—120.

CHAPTER IV.

TRIALS OF EGMONT AND HOORNE.

The Prisoners at Ghent. — Sequestration of their Property. — Their Examination. — Efforts in their Behalf. — The Statutes of the Toison d'Or. — Intercession of Granvelle. — Articles of Accusation. — Egmont's Defence. — Manly Language of Hoorne. — Elaborate Defence by Counsel. — Piteous Appeal of the Countess Egmont. — Further Delay forbidden. — The Prisoners sentenced. — The Rights of the Toison. — Mockery of Justice. Page 121—131.

CHAPTER V.

EXECUTION OF EGMONT AND HOORNE.

The Counts removed to Brussels. — Lodged in the Maison du Roi. — Sentence communicated to Egmont. — His Emotions. — His Preparations for Death. — Affecting Letter to the King. — Final Arrangements. — The Place of Execution. — Mournful Air of the City. — Egmont's Noble Bearing. — The Fatal Stroke. — Horror of the Spectators. — Hoorne conducted to the Scaffold. — His Execution. — Removal of the Bodies. — Egmont's Character. — Want of Fixed Principles. — The Idol of his Countrymen. — Supposed Enmity of Alva. — Stern Policy of the Duke. — His Narrow, Inflexible Mind. — His Compassion for Egmont's Widow. — Her Pitiable Condition. — She solicits Aid from the King. — Receives a Meagre Pension. — Results of Egmont's Execution. — Not foreseen by Alva. Page 131—146.

CHAPTER VI.

SECRET EXECUTION OF MONTIGNY.

Bergen and Montigny. — Conjectures as to their Fate. — Purpose of their Embassy. — Their Reluctance to undertake it. — Anxiety to return. — A Perplexing Dilemma. — Bergen's Death. — Montigny confined at Segovia. — Attempt to escape. — The Plot detected. — Supplications of his Wife. — Process instituted against him. — The Sentence kept secret. — Prisoner removed to Simancas. — Illusive Hopes. — Pretence for Stricter Confinement. — Instructions to Arellano. — Montigny unprepared for his Fate. — Receives the Consolations of Religion. — His Last Wishes. — His Execution. — False Reports disseminated. — Popular Suspicions. — Philip's Magnanimity. — Montigny's Estates confiscated. — Atrocity of the Proceedings. — Groen and Gachard. Page 147—163.

BOOK IV.

CHAPTER I.

THE OTTOMAN EMPIRE.

Method pursued in this Work. — Ottoman Power in the Sixteenth Century. — Government of Turkey. — Conscription of Christian Children. — The Janizaries. — Conquests of the Turks. — Their Naval Power. — The African Corsairs. — Terror of the Spanish Coasts. — Perpetual War on the Mediterranean. — The Captives in Barbary. — Dragut. — Fleet sent against Tripoli. — Refits at Malta. — Spaniards occupy Gelves. — Victory of the Turkish Fleet. — Attack on Gelves. — Extremity of the Garrison. — Desperate Sally. — Slaughter of the Christians. — Spanish Possessions in Africa. — Calamitous Shipwreck. — Expedition from Algiers. — Siege of Oran and Mazarquivir. — Assault on Fort St. Michael. — Invincible Courage of the Spaniards. — Storming of Mazarquivir. — Martin de Córdova. — Famine among the Christians. — Succors from Spain. — The Siege raised. — Conquest of Penon de Velez. Page 164—183.

CHAPTER II.

THE KNIGHTS HOSPITALLERS OF ST. JOHN.

The Knights of St. John. — Conflicts with the Moslems. — Wealth of the Order. — Its Statutes and Government. — Fidelity to its Principles. —

The Knights driven from Rhodes. — Cession of Malta by Charles V. — Change in its Condition. — The Maltese Navy. — Sweeps the Turkish Seas. — Solyman prepares to take Vengeance. — Parisot de la Valette. — Preparations for Defence. — Sicilian Viceroy promises Aid. — Muster of the Knights. Page 183—190.

CHAPTER III.

SIEGE OF MALTA.

Description of Malta. — Its Harbors and Defences. — Force under La Valette. — Castle of St. Elmo. — The Turkish Armament. — Troops disembarked. — Skirmishes. — Turks lay Siege to St. Elmo. — Garrison reinforced. — The Outworks taken. — Fierce Struggle in the Ditch. — New Batteries raised. — Effect of the Fire on St. Elmo. — Garrison propose to abandon it. — Commissioners inspect it. — Report it tenable. — The Garrison humbled. — Permitted to remain. — Assault by the Turks. — Struggle at the Breach. — Attempted Escalade. — The Turks driven back. — Reinforcement from Il Borgo. — Communications cut off. — Mournful Celebration. — Fresh Assault. — Last Triumph of the Garrison. — Their Desperate Condition. — Their Heroic Constancy. — Incredible Resistance. — St. Elmo taken. — Brutal Conduct of Mustapha. — Death of Dragut. Page 190—210.

CHAPTER IV.

SIEGE OF MALTA.

Il Borgo and La Sangle. — Reinforcement from Sicily. — Mustapha offers Terms. — The Fortresses invested. — Preparations for the Assault. — Advance of the Turkish Boats. — Attack on the "Spur". — Courageous Defence. — Turkish Barges sunk. — Merciless Slaughter. — Hassem's Attack repulsed. — Renewed Cannonade. — Efforts of the Besieged. — Timid Policy of the Viceroy. — Exhortations of La Valette. — Successive Assaults. — Perilous Moment. — Night Attack. — Losses of the Christians. — Their Critical Condition. — Resolute Spirit of La Valette. Page 210—227.

CHAPTER V.

SIEGE OF MALTA.

State of the Turkish Army. — Fruitless Expedients. — The Troops dispirited. — Arrival of the Sicilian Fleet. — Joy of the Garrison. — Mustapha prepares to give Battle. — Ardor of the Spaniards. — The Turks overpowered.—Driven to the Ships. — Departure of the Fleet. — Arrival of the Viceroy. — Hospitality of the Knights. — Fury of the Sultan. — Losses sustained in the Siege. — The Operations reviewed. — Errors of the Turks. — Spirit of the Defenders. — Character of La Valette. — Conduct of the Viceroy. — Honors paid to La Valette. — He builds a New Capital. — His Death. — Subsequent History of the Order. Page 227—240.

CHAPTER VI.

DON CARLOS.

Fate of Carlos and Isabella. — Theme of Romantic Fiction. — Early Life of Carlos. — Charles V.'s Opinion of Him. — Mode of spending the Day. — Distaste for Study and Manly Exercises. — Character in the Venetian Reports. — Enfeebled Constitution. — Recognition as Heir. — Removal to Alcalá. — Dangerous Illness. — Miraculous Cure. — Extravagant Behavior. — Anecdotes of Carlos. — Tiepolo's Account of him. — Strong Attachment of his Friends. — Disliked by his Father. — Alliances proposed for him. — His Connection with the Flemings. — Not confirmed by Documents. — Outrage on Alva. — Project of Flight. — Indications of Insanity. — Flight prevented. — Quarrel with Don John. — Carlos deprived of Liberty. — Strictly guarded. — Process against him. Page 241—264.

CHAPTER VII.

DEATH OF DON CARLOS.

Sensation throughout Spain. — Philip's Explanations. — Letter to the Queen of Portugal. — Insanity intimated as the Ground. — Difficulties of this View. — Important Documents missing. — Communications to the Nuncio. — Suspicions of Heresy. — Sympathy with the Flemings. — Parricidal Designs. — Philip's Aversion to his Son. — No Intercourse with the World. — Attendants and Guards. — Fruitless Efforts in his Behalf. — The Subject buried in Silence. — Papers of Carlos. — Philip's Apprehensions. — Desperation of Carlos. — Disregard of Admonitions. — His Excesses. — His Health destroyed. — Change in his Deportment. — Philip's Benediction. — Death of Carlos. — Authority for this Account. — Llorente's Account. — Unsubstantiated by Proof. — Rumors current at the Time. — Discrepancies of the various Accounts. — Insufficiency of the Evidence. — Suspicious Circumstances. — Motives for getting rid of Carlos. — Unscrupulous Character of Philip. — Quarrel in the Palace. — Obsequies of Carlos. — Public Sorrow. — Philip's Feelings. — His Responsibility. Page 265—279.

CHAPTER VIII.

DEATH OF ISABELLA.

Amours of Carlos and Isabella. — Horrible Tale of Revenge. — No Authority but Rumor. — Means of establishing the Truth. — The Queen's Sympathy for Carlos. — His Feeling towards her. — No Vulgar Passion. — Philip's Kindness to his Wife. — Her Popularity in Spain. — Desire to reclaim Carlos. — Pity for his Fate. — Her Illness. — Her Last Hours. — Final Interview with Philip. — Message to her Family. — Her Death. — Funeral Honors. — Mission of Cardinal Guise. — No Mystery in the Narrative. — Philip not jealous of Isabella. — Her Influence over him. — Brantôme's Portrait of her. Page 279—290.