Contents

(Instead of a) Foreword                                xiii
Gabriele Kasper

Pragmatic competence in Japanese as a second language:
An introduction                                         1
Naoko Taguchi

From a! to zo: Japanese pragmatics and its contribution to JSL/JFL pedagogy                                     19
Dina R. Yoshimi

Indexing stance in interaction with the Japanese desu/masu and plain forms                                            41
Kazuto Ishida

Advanced learners’ honorific styles in emails and telephone calls
Keiko Ikeda

Subjectivity and pragmatic choice in L2 Japanese:
Emulating and resisting pragmatic norms                 101
Noriko Ishihara and Elaine Tarone

Requesting in Japanese: The effect of instruction on JFL learners’ pragmatic competence                          129
Yumiko Tateyama

Influence of learning context on L2 pragmatic realization:
A comparison between JSL and JFL learners’ compliment responses
Takafumi Shimizu

Refusals in Japanese telephone conversations              199
Megumi Kawate-Mierzejewska

Comprehending utterances in Japanese as a foreign language:
Formulaicity and literality                             227
Akiko Hagiwara
Comprehension of indirect opinions and refusals in L2 Japanese
Naoko Taguchi

Blended learning for Japanese reactive tokens: Effects of computer-led, instructor-led, and peer-based instruction
Takafumi Utashiro and Goh Kawai

Development of the use of Japanese sentence-final particles through email correspondence
Tomomi Kakegawa

Commentary: The social turn in second language acquisition and Japanese pragmatics research: Reflection on ideologies, methodologies and instructional implications
Junko Mori

Index